Puppeteer Back From Conference

Recently returned as guest speaker at the first Cranbrook puppet conference in Hamilton, Ont., where puppets took a small corner of interest from the visiting King and Queen of England, Paul McPharlin, director of the Marquette Fellowship of Detroit and Birmingham resident, announces that arrangements have been made for a course in practical puppetry at McMaster university, Hamilton, which he will teach during the first three weeks in July.

Walter Wilkinson, English author and puppeteer, will give one performance of the skits, plays and ballads for which he is famous, at the Detroit Institute of Arts lecture hall with his puppet theater, tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. In his latest book, recently published in England, called "Puppets Through America," he devotes part of a chapter to his visit to Birmingham two years ago, and mentions particularly, as an authority on Detroit history, to whom he enjoyed talking, Mrs. William E. Robinson of Wimbeldon drive.
