Not a quiver in a Hoodful
horsepower straight-eight qualifies as the world's one-and-only of its kind.
But in addition to that it's a valve-in-head engine, 10% more efficient, size for size—and it's a Dynaflex valve-in-head, which means it gets more good out of every drop of gas!
The car this great eight powers has plenty else to lay claim to your attention—smart new styling, Buick Coil Springing's "full float" comfort, "finger flick" Handshift transmission, seats in some models that are next thing to five feet wide.
But even if you overlook them and all the rest of its 72 new features—your best buy's still Buick on its power plant alone.
There's not a quiver in a hoodful of ready-to-ramble energy—and nobody will be more pleased to prove it than your nearest Buick dealer!

LET the bonnet of a 1940 Buick and you'll see a hoodful of power plant whose very dimensions reveal the vast reserve of energy it puts at your command.
But just start this over-size giant—stir this slapping brute into action, and you find that only the blur of the fan blades betray its readiness to get up and go!
For you're looking at an engine balanced within limits eight to sixteen times closer than ordinary practice permits.
So precise is Buick's exclusive method of micropoise-balancing after assembly that a misplaced dime's weight on the flywheel rim is enough to reject any engine until that condition has been corrected.
On that score alone this hundred-plus
