

To the Citizens of This Community:

This Institution being a part of and vitally interested in our city, we wish to take this opportunity to voice our approval of this special community event, "Civic Loyalty Day," which is being celebrated next Saturday.

The many loyal citizens who are giving of their time and effort in sponsoring this event are to be congratulated. Too often, we just take for granted the many advantages which we enjoy in our daily lives, forgetting that the environment and system under which we live contribute to and make possible those advantages that we enjoy.

Let us all, then, stop for a moment and be thankful for this delightful community in which we live. Let us become better acquainted with our city and its various departments, all of which add greatly to the ideal living conditions which Birmingham and its environs afford.

CHAS. E. JAMES,
President

Birmingham is a Modern City— Offering Modern Advantages To A Modern Group of People

Here in Birmingham, and the area immediately surrounding, are to be found all of those civic improvements, religious, educational, and recreational, which are conducive to the establishing of homes where family life may be enjoyed to the fullest extent . . . Our system of streets, water supply, sewage, lighting, etc., all tend to adequately serve every section of the city . . . Fine public buildings and parks are provided for your service and enjoyment . . . An outstanding school system provides educational facilities for your children . . . Our police department is efficient and adequate for the protection of our citizens . . . Facilities for religious worship are available for almost all religious denominations . . . Nowhere are we excelled in the beauty of our landscape . . . These and many other advantages too numerous to mention provide a sufficient reason for our being thankful we live in this area.

Truly—Birmingham is a modern suburban city for home-loving people!

MODERN BUSINESS Depends on Modern Banking...

The intricate ramifications of modern business, have done much to satisfy the needs of people today. The necessities and desires of our people could not be adequately and economically satisfied by the methods of operation of years gone by. Business, in this country, has truly measured up to its opportunity.

Banking has played a large part in the development of business as we know it today. The services rendered by modern, efficient banking, have contributed immeasurably to this development.

This Bank maintains departments to cover all of your banking needs, and is making every effort to serve faithfully and well, these needs for the citizens of the Birmingham area. It is looking forward to many, many years of friendly banking service—the kind of service both you and we, here at the Bank, can be proud of.

In the spirit of Civic Loyalty Day, this Bank re-pledges its own policy of service in the theme of this great day . . . loyalty to the personal and civic interests of this splendid suburban area!
