All festivities were held at Dearborn Inn. The 50 guests who were invited to attend the dinner were seated at 11 tables. Music for dancing which followed the dinner was provided by a special orchestra. For the occasion Mrs. Bladon wore a floor length gown of white jersey with puffed sleeves and gold trimming to relieve the lines of the dress.

The Bladons were married 50 years ago in Toledo, Mr. Bladon was associated with the Packard Motor company for 16 years before he retired. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bladon have been active for a number of years in golfing circles and were well known tournament players. BITS OF BIRMINGHAM

Certain residents of Kenosaw avenue these days are looking forward to Halloween night with unusual reminiscences of their own youth. For nearly two months ago they were looking for an operation on this street, at times moving even beyond the speed of light to get to the scene of the operation of such an outdoor project, the workmen have located the house of the late Charles Adams, of which many who know him by all who read Chick Sals.

The other night this Wanderer took Louis Giffels and Merrill Adams, of which many who know him by all who read Chick Sals.

City Manager Donald C. Ebert Monday night is directed to go ahead with proceedings to acquire necessary land to complete an alley from West Maple to Willets street, in the rear of the stores facing Woodward avenue in that section. A petition for this alley was presented to the City by J. C. Houston, Chauncey Nixon, Harlow N. Hays and Charles Leonard. The City bears 15 per cent of the cost.

An interesting local sidelight on the difficulty which Americans are having in getting home from Europe and England was evidenced right in The Eccentric office Wednesday. Floyd J. Miller, editor of the Royal Oak Daily Tribune, has been motoring through the city since the U. S. State Dept. on whether he should sail on the Canadian steamer he has tickets for, or take the ship of another neutral country. Mr. Miller learned from Washington that the U. S. is offering no specific advice on the subject; it admitted that danger exists in sailing on the U. S. steamer that ply waters on the Atlantic; it advised that Mr. Miller get security information from U. S. Consuls in England. It is believed, however, that Mr. Miller, his wife, daughter, and son, will return to Birmingham from Mr. Miller's trip in his American steamer which grab it.

Mr. Maurice Waldrip, a former resident of Birmingham, was one of a group supposed to have sailed on the U. S. steamer on September 1. No word has been heard from this group regarding a return to Birmingham, and Mrs. Waldrip's many Birmingham friends are much concerned.

Harry E. Bissett, of 171 Henrietta Street, placed among the prize-winners of the Michigan Senior annual golf championship tournament held last Friday, September 1, at Mendocwood Country Club. Mr. Bissett won first place in the low net score competition for Class A age fifty, 50 to 54 years. He received a Laidlaw plush lap robe as a prize.

Birmingham's Boy Scouts are considerably upset about Governor Dickinson's crusade to have all Scouts wear long pants, instead of the customary shorts. A local group of Scouts were gathered together the other day and the consensus of their opinions on the subject was thusly expressed: "Governor Dickinson may have had an awful gay youth to be so suspicious of everyone these days."

With fall rains in the offing, it's going to be pretty muddy for pedestrians to get across Hunter Blvd. at East Maple and Oakland avenues, unless adequate walks are constructed at each intersection. Dozens of local people last Monday were visibly distracted because of the mud and water puddles they had to dodge.

Noise of cut-outs on automobiles and motorcycles here will be outlawed rigorously by the City Commissioner Lawrence Hulbert has a way. Local police are asked by the City to comply with ordinance governing that nuisance.

One reason the federal and State governments seek to control the Japanese beetle is that, unless it is controlled, areas so afflicted are completely ruined by the antine, and trees, shrubs, flowers, and produce will not be allowed to be shipped from them.

This column this week must perform a hard duty. It must publish, word for word, an item sent in by John B. Dalley, of East Long Lake road, in which Mr. Dalley gets back at G. R. A. for his last week's Rotary picnic story, wherein Mr. Dalley was referred to as "perhaps the laziest Rotarian in the city." So here is Mr. Dalley's come-back: "After watching the antics of the Casanova of Swat, known to us as our eccentric editor George R. A. Woodruff, I am still amazed at recent Rotary picnic, suggest that he be his age and read Dr. Arnold Toynbee's book on 'The decline and fall of the Roman Empire.' Personally I think George should stick to his boat fishing and knitting."

Miss Nancy Strelinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Strelinger, of Dearborn, will be a part Monday for Wellesley college to resume her studies.

H. C. McConnell Joins Max Brook

Appointment of H. C. McConnell to the sales force of Max Brook, Inc. was announced this week by Robert F. Watt, Vice-president and manager of the Birmingham office of the firm.

Mr. McConnell has seven years experience in the real estate business in the Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills district. After an absence of one year from the real estate business he is returning to that field.

He feels that the general trend to the country and suburbs caused by high Detroit taxes and the desire to live in where zoning ordinances are carefully studied and sensibly carried out, makes the Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills district the destination of a great percentage of north-end Detroiters.
