hurry to the door, open it, and let Petrus in. A few moments later there is a knock. This time it is a company of soldiers who are pursuing Petrus. Petrus protests his innocence and Walter believes him. He commands that they be disturbed the peace of the monastery. Then Petrus is received among the friars as a novice.

Capturing a Real Road Hog

When two trucks collided at Los Angeles intersection, 56 hogs were spilled into street, went on the loose. Bystanders and neighborhood youngsters armed selves with sticks and clubs, helped round up animals. Some hogs were found in service station; others, in used motor car lot. A few had invaded smart cocktail lounges.

heart for the old country. I have a brother and brothers-in-law over there, and if they get in it, why, maybe I'd figure I'd better get in it, too.

War Was Certain

"For years we as a nation, had been taught to hate and distrust the German people and to know that some day war with them was inevitable. This was so certain in the minds of the army that even all landscape targets used on the miniature rifle ranges were typical views of the Belgian and French countryside. Consequently, when the inevitable came about, it was almost with relief that the whole country seized upon the occasion for a glorious series of parades, banners, and flag-waving. Up to this time, all of England's wars had been successfully waged by professional soldiers and whatever volunteers came along, no one doubted but that the regular British army of 100,000 men would be able to take care of the situation and that within six weeks, or at least before Christmas came around, a victorious army would be on its way home. The idea of the Territorial army being mobilized was considered even humorously by many, as the ages of this unit ranged from about 16 to 21 years.

Dear Dad:

Every year in Visby, "the city of rains and roses" on the island of Gotland, is presented the musical play "Petrus de Dacia". This play itself deals with the life of Petrus de Dacia and is founded on the conflict experienced by Petrus between celestial and terrestrial loves, that is, his struggle between his love for God and the Church and his love for the pure Christina.

Act III

Many years have gone by, and Walter is an old man, bent and white-haired. The friars have selected Petrus to be his successor. However, Petrus does not feel that he is worthy and hesitates to undertake such an honored position. He cannot forget the lovely Christina and, while by himself in the room, in a song he expresses his grief at being separated from her whom he loves more than life itself. Repeatedly he sings her name, and his voice softly answers him. He looks up in wonder and amazement and sees the vision of the Virgin Mary, but with the face of Christina. He drops to his knees and bows his head in reverence. Christina sings to him her wonderful prayer song and when he again raises his head the vision has disappeared. Petrus sings a song; he is broken-hearted. Walter enters and tenderly tells him that he has been forgiven. Petrus tells Walter of his vision and Walter praises the divine wisdom which permitted Christina to perform her good work and then took her up to Heaven. Petrus realizes with a gasp that he is now freed from the earthly elements of his soul. He is at last ready. Amid the ringing of bells and the chanting of the friars, Petrus is dressed in a hooded habit. Then Walter hangs his chain and cross around Petrus' neck and the two walk out together.

Need More Cars

Commissioner Kane reported a successful meeting with his transportation committee, and already many cars have been provided to take local people on the trip to various points of interest in connection with the above contest feature. Mr. Kane stated, however, that his committee can use more private cars than that afternoon, and requests that those interested call Clerk Irene Hanley at 1230.

Bombing

"There are three main objectives in bombing: military objectives, industrial objectives, or morale plants, railway depots, and such, and civilian objectives, whose purpose is to destroy public morale. We didn't use this latter method during the World War. But our bombing raids even then were limited. We did not bomb anything but military training there. Because I had that training, I felt that it was my duty to enlist.

Use our SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER APRIL-MAY
To prove in your Home... The SPRING-FALL GAS BURNER Solves BETWEEN-SEASON HEATING PROBLEM
Here your answer to the wasted fuel and useless work of trying to regulate your furnace during the up-and-downs of Fall and Spring weather.
Prove it! . . . Try it! That will prove it. Your own home is the place to prove the benefits many a family already enjoys. Your own family is the one to find out.
Try it! It's economical—a new idea in gas fuel use. It's automatic—no work, no shovelling, no kindling, no ashes, no extra fuel to buy—you just set the thermostat. Try it! Then when winter sets in—change in a jiffy to coal, coke or stoker.
EASY TO USE
The burner fits right in your furnace door and goes to work. Can be instantly placed . . . or removed and hung beside the furnace when not in use. No changes needed in furnace.
Thermostat controls heat at any desired level. Patented burner design uses "a little gas for a lot of heat" . . . more efficient than solid fuel. You'll be pleased with the economy of this plan, because with what you pay for solid fuel to cover the entire season. Installations now in use prove it. As give you the scales. (Priced at only $66.50 cash installed complete with thermostat.)
