

DOGS

Ordinance against dogs running at large was promulgated this week by Manager Egbert and Police Chief John P. Hackett.

Several arrests in 1938
Penalty for violation of the ordinance provides a maximum fine of $25 or 60 days in jail.

During the month of March, 29 dogs were seized by the warden, Herbert Rolph, and of this number, 17 were destroyed.

Monday night, Manager Egbert told the Commission that many dog owners paid no attention to the ordinance or quarantine, and he added that he believed a higher penalty would be effective.

"The fee is not revenue, although it does cost us more than $1 each and feed a dog for three days," Egbert said.

"We will be criticized if we do enforce the ordinance, and also if we don't do something happens," Luther Heacock said.

Both gave their assurances. The warden, Herbert Rolph, will "hear down," it was said, also, policemen will lend their assistance. Last year, the then-dog warden, Harry Hower, was transferred from another city job when a room full of people confronted the Commission, filed in general about the dog situation.

"Lots of people think our dog ordinance is a lot of nonsense," Commissioner Frank S. Packard told his fellows, Monday night.

"One of my friends keeps a piece of meat in his dog's mouth, and that it appears he has always just broken loose."

A black and white fox terrier picked up on Greenwood avenue last week was found not to be ill of rabies.

"Susan and God" has a fine run in New York where the play opened early in October, 1937, and continued attracting theatergoers throughout 1938.

While a large share of this success was attributed to the brilliant performances given by Miss Lawrence, critics were particularly won by the smooth dialog and pleasant comedy which carry through to the final curtain.

Further evidence of the comedy's entertainment value is contained in the recent report of Hollywood that "Susan and God" has been selected as a vehicle for Joan Crawford.

Business News

MANLEY BAILEY HAS NEW APPLIANCE
A new ambulance, said to be the only one of its kind in the city, is being purchased by the service of Manley E. Bailey, 183 Oakland.

On a Packard chassis, the new vehicle is Tonawanda green in color, and has antique white leather which are anchored near the patient.

At the fore the compartment are lockers for first aid materials, linens, etc. A heater and fan, and a provision for over-all, and an anti-sway stabilizer for the utmost in comfort to the patient.

Increased revenue in the State Treasury will result in a partial refund, non-resident, parents and districts which paid $38.86 extra for every high school pupil.

The State will contribute $16.25 for these non-residents, and that amount will be refunded by Birmingham. However, Business Manager Louis M. Randall was told not to do any refunding until the State check arrives.

The money problem looks improved. A month or two ago, a $13,000 deficit for the year was seen, based on an anticipated tax collection of 10 per cent. However, because 76.81 per cent of taxes had been paid, the deficit is now estimated at only $1,280,437.

Francis Renault Stars at Cox's Cafe
Jim Cox, well-known restaurateur in this area for the past 20 years, and proprietor of the cafe bearing his name on Woodward avenue and 1 1/2 Mile road, announces today the establishment of a Sunday afternoon dinner program of entertainment, presenting well known stars of vaudeville and stage.

Headlining this week's show is Francis Renault, a really beautiful many years in this country and abroad for his impersonations, comedies, and dramatics. Renault was the first to recognize the talent of Joe Penner of Radio City, who started at the Club Renault in Atlantic City.

Other acts on this week's night program, which features a new show each week starting Monday, are the Harding Bros. comic duo, and the West Coast who put on a very entertaining sister act; Arthur L. Dick, truly a one-legged wonder, who despite his handicap, roller skates, high jumps, and performs a number of other stunts.

Frazier, master of ceremonies, does a good job of "M-ing" and "G-ing" the audience, and the voices and antics of Joe Penner, Popeye, Ned Sparks, Hittler and Mussolini.

Economic factors led sex, religion, children, health, and a number of other questions in the thoughts of these young folks, mostly in college, whose average age was 21 years.

Sex was more important to persons over 21 and individuals who live in cities and urban areas seemed more interested in sex than those coming from rural sections of Michigan.

Women revealed a greater interest in economic factors than the men, and young men under 21 also were more interested in this subject than most urban women under 21 and rural youth of both sexes showed more interest in the subject than most urban embarking upon the sea of matrimony.

One conclusion that may be drawn from the survey is that today's youths are more than in the past, young people have come to the conclusion that, while love may hurt in their veins it is about time to deny the old good-natured axiom that "two can live as cheaply as one."

Supr. Crull revealed that three hotels and the B & O passenger agent had written him praising the conduct of Birmingham students at their recent Washington-New York trip.

Bits of Birmingham

Continue to keep your eye on our classified advertising columns, dear readers, for we are still making awards each week of tickets to Birmingham, the Board Names are chosen at random from our subscription lists.

That big Municipal Bowling League contest last week was won by the team captained by Mrs. Vera Schultz, her team routing out Miss Irene Hanley's aggregation by a mere five pins.

This wanderer happened in at the Presbyterian Church last Friday night for the annual Ladies night, and he's glad he did, for it would never have been right to miss that performance by Rev. W. Glen Harris as a singing cowboy. Dressed in chaps, sombrero, and carrying a lariat, the minister sang three cowboy numbers that brought forth heavy applause.

Quite a talented chap, that Glen Harris (we understand he can play a mean harmonica, also). The program was a burlesque on home and political life, with an all-male cast, starring Floyd Franklin, Bill Hoover, Bob Allen, Allen Arnold, R. P. Cole, Don Plumstead, Earl Potter, Herb Wood and Jerry Aeh-benzenberg, directed by Karl Lotz. R. Cole, a 200-pounder, dressed in boys' shorts, was a scream! The merris and motif were in Texas style in honor of Senator Harris, who hails from the Lone Star State.

Copies of the recently adopted School Code have been mimeographed and are available to persons interested.

President Leo E. Joslyn, Jr. appointed John Harvey Roosa to act with Supr. Crull on the new City Recreation Commission.

"So near and yet so far," or "A miss is as good as a mile" might be the title of a good deal of gossip missed by George E. Baldwin, of Lakewood avenue, Wednesday evening of last week. Flying from Chicago to Detroit in one of the Alcoa Airlines planes, the plane was within 400 feet of landing at the Detroit City Airport when suddenly a heavy fog fell over the field, causing the pilot to zoom his ship skyward.

Another interesting fact about the staff is that Joe Loftis, janitor, and Charles Bonham, projectionist, have been a constant employ of the theatre ever since its opening. Leo G. Ward, a Birmingham young man, is assistant manager.

The Birmingham Theatre is owned by the United District Theatres, of which Earl J. Hudson is president and general manager.

between students from each city. Invitation several times each year to honor students in the Oakland County Juvenile Home, playing host to 101 local school boys because of their voluntary activities in handling safety patrol duties, and many other co-operative aids here.

I have received many letters from prominent local and nearby citizens, pointing out their appreciation of the Birmingham Theatre, and they will be displayed in the lobby during Testimonial Week, added Mr. Holah.
