

MEETINGS

Lynd, YMAA secretary, is program chairman for the event May 19. From the school census list, the names of 123 persons 21 years of age have been selected, but because some have moved away, and others are in college, it is not expected to secure the participation of all 123. However, each will be sent an invitation to participate. First on the program will be the three meetings in which governmental structure and duties of citizens will be studied. An attractive booklet, "Facts About Your Job as a Voting Citizen," prepared especially for Citizenship Day, has just been published, written by Harold M. Door and Edward H. Litchfield, of the Department of Political Science, University of Michigan.

Climax May 19
The climax of the program will be the parade and speaking program May 19, in Pontiac. Efforts are being made to secure a man of national prominence to give the principal address. Other talks will be given by Mrs. Charles J. Shain, of Birmingham; Michigan's Chief Justice Edward M. Sharpe, who will preside over the induction ceremony; and a talk, "We Accept the Challenge," given by one of the "21-ers."

Debate Policy in Street Work

Whether the City should proceed to lay gravel on portions of Torrey, Webster and Cole streets and accept payment over a period of five years was debated by the City Commission Monday night. The request for the improvement was embodied in a letter from E. S. Jackson, a builder, who said that he controlled 115 tax-paid lots on which he plans to build many low-priced homes, but cannot get FHA approval until the streets are improved.

The Commission pondered the idea of asking for advance payment of perhaps $800 before starting the $2,000 job. The payments may be spread over five years, normally. No decision was reached on the matter other than the ordering of preliminary steps for setting up a special assessment district.

DOGS

Table with 3 columns: Item, Unit Price, Per Year. Includes Hamburger, Dog food, License, Depreciation, Pound fee, Immunization, Soap, Pills, Flea powder, Miscellaneous, and TOTAL.

Alternative: May cover such items as trips to vet, Christmas presents, torn trousers for neighbor boy, leash, chain, repairs to dog house, rugs chewed by dog, etc., depending on nature of dog.

The above table is hypothetical, and any similarity to dogs real or dead is purely coincidental.

Champion of Freedom
The dog was the champion present at the Well Mannered Dog show of D. Burns, of 250 Pleasant avenue.

Mr. Burns told the Commission: "I am making the same proposal I made a year ago. Why tie up dogs which have been immunized? Why shouldn't they be allowed to run free?"

He pointed out that his dog never strayed from home and was allowed outside the house only for a short period each day, and had never been the subject of neighbors' complaints.

"Why should I be a law-breaker in making the same proposal to get some consideration for the immunized dogs that are not nuisances?"

Mayor John E. Martz, veteran of many a dog debate in Commission making the same proposal. Mr. Burns, that many people don't take care of their dogs the way you do."

The fact was also brought out that the quarantine was imposed by the state, and that the city has no power to alter its provisions.

Way to End Rabies
Police Chief John P. Hackett added: "If everybody kept his dog confined there would not be any more rabies. There's no rabies in Germany or England. If all dogs were immunized, rabies would soon disappear."

The discussion lasted for more than an hour, and concluded with the thought that in another year, compulsory immunization would be imposed.

The new pound fees, which formerly were $1 for first offenders, become official with publication of the ordinance amendment in today's issue of The Sentinel. And that's that, doggone it.

It might be added that a letter was read to the Commission from Mrs. Frank van Fleterson, 412 Frank street, who protested the change in the ordinance if it were being made merely because their dog was a rabies victim. The dog had bitten no one, she pointed out.

LAW SUIT

The law provides that Mrs. Parks' only recourse is to match the city's bid of $2,200; otherwise she loses all claim, providing the courts uphold the provisions of the law in the various test cases now being pressed.

The fact that there probably would be no more since the Swedish-American club, which had weekly meetings from Finland, has cancelled all trips due to the enlargement of the club.

Vice-Consul Heidemann said this week that he personally felt his brother was still in the Finnish Army, for although a few American volunteers have returned to the States, the army has not been demobilized.

Relatives in Denmark
The fact that he was striking close to home for Miss Gerda Hansen, French and Spanish instructor at Oakland Hills High School, whose grandparents and other relatives and many friends were living in a large city in Denmark when the Germans occupied the peninsula a week ago.

HUNTER

city ordinance permits only 60 per cent of the frontage in driveway, because of the desire to retain a park-like appearance along the highway.

Manager Donald C. Edgett announced that he had learned that the State Highway Department had completed its plans for complete landscaping of the area, and (also for slight changes in the design at the two intersections with Woodward avenue).

Commissioner Frank S. Packard was outspoken in his belief that the city should "save" Hunter ways," he said.

Commissioner Wilmer E. Moody suggested that the city might be urged for parking, and not merely to prevent big concrete drive ways," he said.

What control does the city have in the matter? This is not yet clear. The entire right-of-way was bought by the State and the State is in full control of all traffic on the highway.

What rights the abutting property owners have in regard to parking on the outer side is a moot point, he said.

The meeting was laid on the table for another week, particularly the request to cut down the two trees.

In his talk Wednesday, Mr. Toothaker showed what research chemistry has done in the development of industry. With the use of the 92 known chemical elements, he made possible the speaker said.

GRAVEL PIT

Edgett estimated that if no site close-by were available, it would cost the city $17,250 per mile per year for every additional mile of haulage.

"The city has in the past paid as high as $250 for the privilege of dumping on various sites for a two-week period," he added.

It was also brought out that the City of Detroit advertised in the Evening News that it was looking for a gravel pit.

Edgett promised that the job would be handled without creating a nuisance, with no fire, and by covering the rubbish with earth as soon as practically, when the 35-acre cavity is filled, estimated to occur in about 20 years, the land may be used as a park or school.

Troy Learns Fact
Edgett, after talking with Troy Township officials Wednesday to point out the city's side of the picture, he said they were concerned at having the 71 acres given off the tax roll, for municipal property can not be taxed.

Monday night, Edgett also revealed that the pit contains low grade gravel which may be used for a limited extent in improving streets. The north end of the pit, purchased by the city, is still being exploited for its gravel by private persons.

Mrs. Lottie Abbett, of Southfield road, driving south on Woodward avenue, last Thursday, hit a cleaner's truck backing out from the curb, driven by Mike Mitchell, 21. She blamed the youth for the mishap.
