USE LIGH to direct traffic in your store

By the judicious use of lighting, it is possible to IEAD, customers to specific points or displays in your store, and increase the sale of merchandise in that area. A department store, for example, changed its ordinary lighting to a combination of indirect lighting and spot lighting. The change of lighting was made in the women's ready-to-wear department, and traffic in this section of the store, was so increased that additional salespeople had to be called in and the sale of featured thesess increased 6%.*
