by LILLIAN DIEDERICH

Mrs. Stanley Walker, of San Jose boulevard, gave a bridge luncheon Wednesday, in honor of Mrs. Eugene Himes, who is a new resident of Lathrup. Twelve Lathrup women participated.

Mrs. James Powrie, of Monon court, has her mother and sister, Mrs. John Cornell and Mrs. John Bock, of Los Angeles, Calif., for a few weeks' visit. Mrs. Powrie before her sudden illness, the Powries gave a dinner at the Detroit Boat Club for 22 guests in honor of the Asselin-Monroe nuptials which were solemnized on June 19. Little Imogene Powrie was flowergirl at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Scolaro, of Monon court, are hosts this Lathrup. Games were played and refreshments served.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lucht, of Chalmers boulevard, returned on Saturday from a trip to Rockford, Ill.

Mrs. Eugene Schmale, of Eldorado place, was hostess for the regular card meeting of the Radio League Unit 11, on Thursday afternoon, followed by a dessert buffet.

Dr. and Mrs. Ford K. Daines, of San Joaquin boulevard, as a guest this week, Mrs. Daines' sister, Miss Roberta Daines.

Gordon Walker, 13-year-old son of the Charles Walkers, of San Jose boulevard, graciously complied with my request that he write a few lines about his recent interesting trip around the country. Last semester, Gordon won second prize at the Annie Lathrup school in a competitive essay contest on the subject, "The Correct Use of the Flag."

The prize was awarded by Three Flags Chapter, D. A. R. The year concerning Gordon's recent trip reads: "We started the first of the 1940 trips on June 17. These tours are sponsored by Chrysler Corp. for the thousands of Chrysler employees and are directed by Mr. Haines who has made a life work of organizing a loop when he barked, for he acts like a lion tamer; but he gave us a swell two weeks, and he had around 200 boys to watch over. Our journey took us through our route through the Gettysburg battlefields, Washington, Annapolis, and Niagara Falls. The high point of the tour was the city of Washington. It reminded what I think a 1930 city should look like, so clean, so modern and beautiful. We had a special trip through the F. B. I. headquarters in Washington, D. C. We went to see a crook! Another real thrill was a police escort they gave us in Pittsburgh. We had a letter on lots and it rained a lot so we wished we had jackets to put it around in the morning. The food was swell and lots of it, but it was tough, so I got to get the jam for seconds. Our appetites were really something!"

Constance Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odie S. Lane, of California drive, gave a party Saturday evening for a group of twenty-two young women. Betty and Esther Wadell, of Radcliffe boulevard, who are newcomers to

LET THE LOWER LIGHTS BE BURNING

War destroys truth, tolerance, love and justice. Even the intelligent military men recognize that fact these days. When nations give themselves to war the aftermath is always in terms of the lives of our citizens and our national consciousness is consumed by it, should not we desire above all things to keep these attributes alive, at least as much as possible? As our sense of international brotherhood and our common kinship dies, shouldn't there be lower lights still burning? The churches of America have an even bigger, more important, more lasting job on their hands than affording solace to the souls of those who have died in war. It is to use all their strength in keeping alive what war and hatred kills. If the church fails in this because of its lack of vision or the lack of our support, what will follow this war will very likely be worse than the war itself.—Charles A. Wells.

This is the special sponsored by Harry Young People.

House Built Right Not Apt to Suffer From Wood Decay

Houses erected in defiance of well-known principles of good building practice can deteriorate rapidly and are those most susceptible to decay, according to the Technical Division of the Federal Housing Administration.

Decay is the result of wood infection by certain low forms of fungi. These fungi are capable of disintegrating the cell walls and thereby changing the chemical and physical properties of the wood. FHA officials explain. In the wood it is in the form of the danger point as quickly as possible and then keeping the material dry. The moisture content of wood favorable to decay is generally believed to be somewhat above 20 per cent.

Frank Lorimer, professor, American University: "From now on it would seem that time is on the side of forces opposed to the Axis powers unless the British Navy is destroyed."

Cool as a TRUCKLOAD OF ICE

... this inexpensive "package unit" air conditioner!

Here's modern magic as amazing as Aladdin's lamp—an attractive, compact cabinet, only 31 inches high—containing the cooling equivalent of FIFTEEN HUNDRED POUNDS OF ICE PER DAY. Yet there is not one pound of ice in the cabinet!

Snap a switch; Quietly and efficiently, a flow of cool, clean, filtered air is circulated to every part of the room. Windows can be kept closed. Street noises are shut out. Dust, dirt, and pollen are removed. Sweating heat and humidity are replaced by cool, clean, bracing air—as crisp and invigorating as a breeze from a mountain top.

On the hottest summer days, one of these "package unit" air conditioners will furnish a haven of cool comfort in your home or office. Attractive walnut-grained cabinets are styled to harmonize with the finest furnishings. Installation can be made quickly and easily, without alterations or office changes. Completely self-contained, the unit requires no drains, no pipes, no plumbing. It can be placed anywhere. When you move you can take it with you. Prices start at about $130 for a unit for a small bedroom or office.

An air conditioning dealer will give you full information about these low-cost room coolers. Telephone today. The Detroit Edison Company. (We do not sell this equipment.)

SCOUT NEWS

Who They Are The several smiling Scouts on the front page are the major part of the Flying Eagle Patrol which represented Troop 17, at the Detroit Area Council Camporee held at Rouge Park last week end.

Over 40 patrols (well over 300 Scouts) took part in that one-day camp for the benefit of the public and, incidentally, the Scouts themselves.

The B-T contingent, consisting of Patrol Leader Jack Dunn, Scoutmaster P. L. Elmer Giles, Charley Van Pleteren, Dick Dunn, Jerry Cole, Jimmy Green, and Jimmy Green, arrived at Scout Hollow, Rouge Park, about noon on Saturday and proceeded to set up camp.

During the afternoon they participated in a series of projects and tests calculated to test their Scoutcraft. Then came supper, and after supper the watermelon donated by Robert Van Pleteren, chairman of B-T's troop committee, and provider of the patrol's transportation, both to and from the camp site. That watermelon was an instant success. The Scouts threw their heads back and fell in love with it at once, and Scouts from nearby camps dropped over to drool helpfully.

In hopes that the Scouters might also fall in love with B-T's patrol they were judiciously bribed with portions of the melon.

After that, there was a brake game to "capture the flag" and then back to camp to get photographed, and then to bed. The grins on the faces of the Scouts in the picture are due in large part, we understand, to the Scouts just finding that there was a pound of marshmallows to be eaten.

This night the Scouts took turns watching until one of them felt that his "dolee far net" was more important than guarding against "marauding" mosquitoes, and so they all slept from then until dawn did steaminate the eastern Skies. Then there was breakfast, clean-up, breakfast again, and then home. Nice picture wasn't it?
