 money this year that last year," Mr. Joslyn said.
 "We have no cushion to operate on like they have," Ernest W. Seaholm declared. "We are on the ragged edge all the time."
 The city appropriated $300, and also provided water and gas in preparing playgrounds.
Purchases Held Down
 Mr. Randall presented a list of books, supplies, equipment and repair materials needed to operate the schools next year, totaling $10,447.08. Because the new budget is not ready, only the most urgent requisitions were authorized. They totaled $1,461.80. Most of the remainder must be purchased next within the next two months.
 A letter from the Parent-Teacher council invited the Board to attend the street dances throughout the summer.

Prof. Gregg to Lead Landscape Tour

A landscape tour next Tuesday is being sponsored by the Home Extension Department of the Oakland County Extension Service under the direction of Mrs. Lois T. Dudgeon, county home demonstration agent.
 All garden clubs throughout the county as well as members of home extension groups interested in landscaping their homes are invited to participate in the tour which will be conducted under the direction of O. I. Gregg, landscape extension specialist from the Michigan State College. The tour leaves at 10 a. m. from the Lee Brooks home on Highland road.
 "How come you don't like the girls?"
 "Oh, they're too biased."
 "Biased?"
 "Yes, biased. It's bias this and bias that till I broke."

MELBY

 Dean Melby. They are diametrically opposed to the American way of life."
 "Twenty-five years ago we didn't realize that today certain nations would throw away their moral codes and justify murder," said Dr. Melby. "This is the reason why we are up against an enemy who is very important to predict because he doesn't have any rules. This is what we face in 1940."
Truth and Dececy vs. Force
 "The situation abroad is not only over wealth and power, but also between those who have a respect for the truth and for decency as opposed to those who rely on brute force and the philosophy of 'the end justifies the means.'"
 Should one point so dark a picture to 1940 as to talk of a hopeless world? questioned Dean Melby. "No," he answered. "There are no means by which we can lose our freedom. One may be temporarily, the other may be permanently."
 "The first way is from without: by being conquered by some other nation. The second way, and most dangerous to consider, is from within, when the people have lost faith in their society and nation. Tonight is very important to us because we have this faith, as well as the support and encouragement of our country."
Study American Life
 "The thing to do, then, is this: study the American way of life, its traditions; the meaning of democracy in politics, in art, in literature. We need to study these things in order to find the meaning of democratic life in the United States."
 In his trips to the European continent, Dr. Melby found that the fascists and Nazis are talking their way of life since they know all about it.
 "But can we Americans talk about ours?" he asked. "If we can't, then we as teachers and educators have failed. Our way of life is the best in the world. Democracy is the strongest, the most wonderful way of life of all. It is a way of life that is a reward of life, while democracy is one of courage."
 "Our job is to make this democratic way of life work; this is the only way to keep the country going along this democratic line. If we espouse a philosophy of hate and despotism, the nation will be destroyed."
 The responsibilities of America this year should dedicate themselves to the support of the American way of life from within by having faith in the common man, by keeping alive one's personality and individuality, and by continuing to base our social and political orders on truth," he concluded.
 The Rev. Warren G. Gribble, of St. James Episcopal Church, delivered the invocation, which was followed by a prayer from Harold Jones, a member of the graduating class. Mrs. Arnold Hermit accompanied him on the piano.
 Edwin Covey, vice-president of the 1940 graduates, presented the class gift, a check for the high school track fund, to Richard Gilbert. Dispensing with the customary valedictory and salutatorian speeches, the class of 1940 presented gifts to James F. and Cameron Higgins, who were valedictorian and salutatorian respectively.
 The Rev. Gordon Eix, another member of the graduating class, played a piano solo. Principal Ray H. Bechtold presented the class for graduation, and diplomas were awarded by Howard D. Crull, superintendent of schools.

Sailing Popular at Pine Lake

Sailing has become such a popular pastime at Pine Lake Country Club that it is likely that before long this beautiful bit of blue inland water will be dotted with the white sails of the growing club fleet. The club has been organized justly by a group of Pine Lake members this spring. They have created so much interest that now there is a long waiting list of members who want to join the sailing activities. Paul N. Averill, of Birmingham, who pioneered sailing at the club, has suggested a set of tentative regulations to make sailing safe as well as enjoyable for the members. Herbert Poppleton, an expert yachtsman, in charge of sailing instruction and is kept busy by this capacity party. Pine Lake Country Club sailors will hold a meeting at the club Thursday night to plan nautical activities for the balance of the season.

 factory," Starr said. "Direct communication between the station and the scout car is the only adequate way of handling the prod," he added.
 Asked for his opinion Tuesday, Police Chief John P. Hackett admitted that direct communication would be more satisfactory.
 Monday night, City Manager Egbert told the City Commission that it would cost between $200 and $300 a year to operate a local police radio transmitter.
 Newsom, chairman of the committee, said that the transmitter, built by Radio Shack, Alton, senior, has been coaching boys' softball. Fred Bord, of Edmond street, Baldwin junior, a volunteer worker, has been adding. Bicycle traps, bikes are "in the air." A tennis tournament is also planned, as well as bicycle races. Art classes will begin next week. Miss Elizabeth Boelford is supervisor.
