

Trout Fishing Opens In State April 27

LANSING—With closing of inland lakes of Michigan to fishing March 31, anglers face the period of greatest inactivity of the year. These species may not be taken except for the smelt runs which are the occasions for celebrations in a number of northern Michigan communities.

Waters remaining open to fishing are the Great Lakes and connecting waters, non-trout streams, trout streams designated open to trout and line fishing throughout the year, and certain lakes directly connected with Lake Michigan.

Trout streams and trout lakes will be opened to fishing again on April 27. Pike lakes will be opened to fishing again on May 15 when everything except black bass, bluegills and sunfish may be taken from any waters until June 25 when all inland lakes are opened.

LANSING—The Hatch act extension to state employees, which passed the Senate at Washington last week and is now before the House, is another illustration of the gradual breakdown of States' rights through granting of federal aid.

A parallel exists in the system of state grants to local governments. Together they have confused the taxing picture, making it more one of a tax on the tax on the tax. The inevitable result has been a shifting of responsibility from public officials to others miles away either at the state or national capital.

Because both federal and state governments have been increasing the granting of aid, the Hatch act was really inevitable, regardless of the "politicians" which motivate members of Congress in varying degrees.

Consider then the growth of federal aid, if you please, as it applies to Michigan.

Social Security
The federal social security act, a child of the New Deal is supported by taxes collected by employers and employees.

When benefit payments for unemployment compensation started in Michigan on August 1, 1938, Michigan's fund totaled $65,298,000. The fund at the first of 1940 was $45,500,000, a gain of $9,000,000 over the balance of one year ago. Contributions for 1940, it is estimated, should exceed benefit payments by $10,000,000, making the fund for the first of 1941 of around $46,000,000.

Benefits to unemployed citizens have reached a total of nearly $77,000,000. Contributions have totaled $12,200,000.

Old age assistance, public health service, and employment service are other federal aid activities which have been created since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration.

447 Millions Relief
During the past few years Michigan has been allocated for emergency relief a total of $447,423,627, according to a White House report submitted to Congress. The Work Projects Administration expended $2,262,250,000 during this time, for state work. Administration overhead was $81,614,016 in addition.

Last year brought an all-time high in federal expenditures in Michigan, a total of $13,914,257. Other years' spending of federal money here were:
1938—$74,634,880
1937—$81,381,923
1936 and 1935—$109,221,045.

Agricultural benefits are $13,422,951, this money going to the farmers in A. A. payments for soil conservation, loan, rural rehabilitation and relief.

The NYA accounted for $9,844,000 in public health service, $348,993.15; U. S. Housing Authority, $3,526,203.86—and on and on.

Highway Federal Aid
An important recipient of federal aid in Michigan is the state highway department.

At the end of March before the house roads committee Murray D. Van Wagoner, commissioner of highways, appeared to plead for continuation of federal aid programs. Presenting a 10-year program of highway needs in Michigan, Van Wagoner proposed the following spending with the aid of federal money.

Immediate widening of 606 miles of trunklines, $94,838,000.
Future widening of 1236 miles of trunklines, $181,323,000.

New belt lines around cities of Detroit, Toledo, 259 miles, $177,720,000.

Replacing 7618 miles of gravel roads and concrete pavements, $400,000,000.

The 9400-mile trunkline system carried 61 per cent of all traffic; received 55 per cent of the money spent.

State Payrolls
The growth of federal aid grants to Michigan, social security and other-wise, accounted last year for more than $400,000 increase in state payrolls. Payroll expenditures for the past two years were as follows:

1938
Unemployment compensation—$1,107,372 $1,403,700
Employment Service—1,114,034 1,300,980
Public Health—429,192 477,947
Old Age pensions—858,286 639,216
Highway—4,827,083 4,378,115

$7,895,947 $6,399,958

The increase in state payrolls for these federal aid activities for 1939 over 1938 was $504,011.

As a result of the total increase of all state departments and institutions for 1939 over 1938 was $237,719.

Otherwise, if it were not for the federal aid departments, Michigan would have shown a decrease in state payrolls last year instead of an increase. However, the same economy claim could have been made by the previous state administration. For the year of 1938 alone the unemployment compensation payroll jumped from $302,905 in the previous year to $1,107,372; the employment law enforcement shot from $29,022 to $1,114,034.

Louis Should Have Little Trouble Beating Paychek

BY IRVING DIX

THESE are those who insist Johnny Paychek will be the next heavyweight champion of the world along about 11 o'clock the night of March 29 in Madison Square Garden, New York.

That is by way of saying the thin-thatched thumper from Des Moines will give Joe Louis, the incumbent, good going over in their meeting.

Such an eminent critic as Benny Leonard, the one-time lightweight champion who has been helping Paychek prepare for the match, declares the challenger has the necessary speed and skill to take Louis.

That's just one man's opinion, and an expert's at that, but it also might be that Mr. Leonard naturally is a little prejudiced.

ALTHOUGH Johnny Paychek is far from a third-rater as many suspect, Louis shouldn't have as much trouble with him as he had with Arturo Goyena in his last title defense.

Paychek is a sharp hitter and he fights a stand-up fight. Louis usually murders a guy that will stand up and swing.

There are those who are a couple of heavyweights around who could beat Paychek—Bob Pastor and Tony Galento, namely—but the town, who got his start in Chicago, slips into a title shot by virtue of a great ball-blooming campaign.

A few years back he fought under his real name of Flore but didn't get anywhere until he was picked up by Harold Steinman, his present manager, and taken to Des Moines, where he started.

His name was changed to Paychek and the first-step spelling helped him immediately.

He's come a long way since then but Joe Louis' hand system has the best way out in their championship meeting. Although Louis' hand is a little better

Hot Dog Muncher Runs for Congress

OSODA — Ed Anderson of the northeast Michigan as "bobcat Ed" has been waiting for some more time in the line of running his total bag of bobcats taken with bow and arrow this winter to an even half dozen.

Anderson has been hunting bobcats with a bow and arrow each winter for his last 15 years and together with his hunting companions has accounted for some half hundred cats.
