two barns and riding ring would approximate $40,000. His father, G. C. Oakland, of Beverly Hills, is the owner and is partly protected by insurance. They are now making plans and hope to rebuild.

65 Horses Escape
About 65 privately-owned horses in the two barns on 14-Mile road were placed in a corral as soon as the blaze was discovered, although several jumped a fence and escaped to the woods nearby. Oakland said.

The blaze started at 7:30 p. m. in the western barn, but 2 1/2 years ago, the granary, possibly from an oil stove in granary quarters. Whipped by the high wind, the flames soon leaped the riding ring and new barn to the east, recently finished.

Embers were carried three-quarters of a mile, igniting grass and corn shocks.

It was said that worst "I ever seen," Fire Chief Vernon Griffith of Birmingham declared.

Bloomingdale, Birmingham, and Berkeley sent equipment, and Birmingham lost two 50-foot lengths of hose from the fire-fight. Firemen saved several buildings on the north side of the road, and guarded against possible grass fires which might have spread to Birmingham.

Hay and grain were destroyed.

Glass Shattered
Four huge panes of plate glass in the Temptation Plymouth garage on South Woodward were shattered in the blow, and it will cost the insurance company about $500 to repair them.

Kline, a salesman, had just moved away from the first window as break and was telephoning when the glass shattered in a spray like snow. In a split second, another window shattered and hardly had cars been pushed off the floor when a third window broke. One car inside had one outside window shattered for a total of about $100. No person worth $100 was injured, police reported.

At the Cadillac-Pontiac showroom, North Woodward and Wilk, an extensive curved glass, pierced several weeks ago from a flying stone, collapsed from the wind pressure, and was replaced in shape had already been specified for the $250 repair.

Barn Roof
Another casualty was the old brick and wood barn on Hamilton street, back of the Birmingham National Bank. The barn, known by Luther Heacock, was built about 40 years ago and by the time of the Heacock, the south part of the roof collapsed, and Heacock immediately had the top section removed and replaced to move the hazard to traffic in the alley. Heacock, away during the night, could not ascertain whether all the structure will be razed.

Following are reports of the various discussion groups:

Function of Church in Community
Seven pastors participated in this discussion, which was one of the chief items on the agenda. The Rev. Theodore Wogatzar, helped plan the session but was prevented from attending by an other obligation.

At the start, each pastor gave a two-minute report.

The Rev. Warner L. Forsyth, St. James' church pastor, said that the duty of the church is to promote a love of God in nature and for one another. The church must keep our lives centered in a hard world; it must raise the young; it must be the Rev. Charles H. Cadigan, pastor of Christ Church Cranford, declared that the main function of the church is to relate people to God through worship, prayer and sacraments.

The church should provide light, power and service and translate them into homes and lives of the people.

The Rev. W. Elton Hahn, First Presbyterian minister, said that the church's duty is to call attention to the need to accept responsibility as a social force, especially for the young. The church must challenge the able to do more than be understood by the simplest mind. Training is necessary now to build a new world.

The Rev. E. McKee, Methodist minister, declared that the church's first function is to relate people to God. The church has tried to do too many things; emphasis is needed on worship.

The primary object is to relate people to God. The church should be a place where people can find the meaning of life and the teachings of Christ, which challenge the able to do more than be understood by the simplest mind.

The Rev. David J. Duncan, pastor of Holy Name Catholic Church, said that the purpose of the church is to relate people to God. People must be fed spiritually, he said. He advised reading of the lives of the saints, and periods of retreat for meditation.

The Rev. Rudolph Hayes, pastor of the Methodist Church, declared that the church should set the same relation to the community as a lighthouse to a navigator.

Dr. Robert W. Kelly, all joined in further discussion. One question asked was how the church should relate to the community. Dr. Potter acted as secretary.

Function of the Community Council
Following is Mrs. Cleveland W. Potter's report on the discussion. This group was especially fortunate in having the keynote speaker, Dr. Robert W. Kelly, who stressed that the council should be a place where people can find the meaning of life and the teachings of Christ, which challenge the able to do more than be understood by the simplest mind.

The following points were discussed:

1. The youth of the community should be given the opportunity to secure the youthful viewpoint and to give opportunity for the development of youth to take its place in community affairs.

The Adult Education group convened at 7:30 p. m. on the day of the Institute. About 28 persons were present.

The Rev. J. O. Nelson, Baptist pastor, said that the church's duty is to relate people to God through worship, prayer and sacraments.

The Rev. David J. Duncan, pastor of Holy Name Catholic Church, said that the purpose of the church is to relate people to God.

The Rev. E. McKee, Methodist minister, declared that the church's first function is to relate people to God.

The following points were discussed:

1. The youth of the community should be given the opportunity to secure the youthful viewpoint and to give opportunity for the development of youth to take its place in community affairs.

2. The relationship of the school staff to the community should be apparently about right at the present time. Councils seem to need help with the planning of their function and grow, yet cannot depend too much on the leadership of the school.

3. Many communities of 25,000 to 50,000 people have community councils of some kind. Many have a paid executive who handles most of the work. This was felt to be a danger, as a few councils of real enthusiasm are necessary to the real functioning of the council. Many laymen should be in the group.

4. The community calendar is an important item and is functioning on an increasingly satisfactory plane.

The problem of securing a more full understanding of the council was discussed. Lack of incentive to the public to participate. More groups should be asked to work as opportunities to inform other members of the community.

It was decided to recommend to the Institute that the Student Organization be invited to become a member of the council.

This meeting was also attended by Ross Tenney of the Oakland County Juvenile Home and John S. Hallett of the State Department of Public Instruction. The two men came to learn about the Birmingham Council and tell of the work of other councils. That Birmingham was a leader in the council movement and should be encouraged to set an example for other communities, was the opinion expressed by our three distinguished guests.

Bechtold Explains School Evaluation

By use of a series of charts, the methods and results of the evaluation made late last spring of Baldwin High School by the North Central Association were shown Wednesday noon to Lions Club members by Ray H. Bechtold, principal of the high school.

Baldwin High School, Bechtold pointed out, is above the normal average for large schools in nearly all fields and (but one activity) deficient; this trend indicates training or vocational shop work. Principal Bechtold was introduced by Howard D. Crull, superintendent of schools.

has been set up. Secretary in an adjoining room on Page 1.

First questioner to be returned was that of Bert Francis Smith, 1520 Buford, whose inquiries were fulfilled on Wednesday. He is married man.

Persons who can not return their questionnaires within the required five days may ask at the headquarters in the Municipal Building for extra time.

FIRST MEDICAL EXAM
First medical examination will be made Wednesday, Nov. 20, probably at 10 a. m. according to Dr. O. O. Beak, chief examiner. When questionnaires are returned, the draft board will classify them all into Class I (available for training); Class II (deferred for reasons of occupation); Class III (deferred because of dependent); Class IV (deferred permanently).

The first group to be deferred will be those who are classified to appear for medical examination and from that group, the first two physically fit will be selected for training in the first call.

Dr. Beak has nominated the following doctors to be assistant examiners: E. H. Tucker and J. Reilly, dentists; Thomas Y. Watson, J. Paul McKenry, Ralph G. Ferris and Dr. Norman S. Schaefer, physicians. These men will take turns in assisting Dr. Beak. The examinations will probably take place at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Only men in Class I will be examined.

GROSS AND NET QUOTA
The gross quota of trainees now in the city has been set at 247 men. However, 77 now in service from this area reduce that number to a net of 170.

SCHOOLS

Revive Floodlight Plan
Plans are being revived for installation of floodlights at福德 Field next year.

"That night game I saw at福德 field convinced me we could install lights and pay for them in two years from the increased revenue," Trustee Mack declared. He and W. H. Crook were appointed as a committee to get more facts on costs and possible financing.

Payroll Problem
A special assembly of $20,000 from the State to meet the Friday payroll is expected. However, if the check does not arrive in time, $5,000 will be borrowed from the Birmingham National Bank. Cash on hand totals $5,000.

Two Arrested
George Craig, 25, of 644 Forsyth avenue, Birmingham, was fined $15 this week on a drunk and disordered charge on which he was booked Tuesday afternoon at 10 o'clock.

Craig and a companion, Jerry O'Rourke, 27, were arrested when they were picked up at Woodward and Maple avenues. O'Rourke, unable to pay his fine, was still being held late Wednesday afternoon.

CARS IN COLLISION
A 1934 Buick sedan, Model 15, 15 years old of 1336 Ruffner street, was in collision Wednesday with a car operated by Paul H. Kaut, 36, of 2185 Scott Lake road, Pontiac, at Oakland avenue and Hunter boulevard.

The Buick car, going east on Oakland, was unable to stop when the light changed, police say.
