

THIS AND THAT

the great Oak of Democracy for the main event; that is, in the lesser acts; which is why the Presidential race gets most of their attention.

ent is going to get my vote.) You vote for the United States Senator (why not Vandenberg?) Congressman, with incumbent Republican George A. Dondero—who says he voted—and local citizen Democrat Draper Allen opposing each other; (Draper is a nice chap, too.)

Then you'll be able to make your selection for State Representative and State Senator from this District, plus a whole lot of candidates for Oakland County offices. You will probably spend more time in the voting booth this trip than in quite a few years. (Especially if you lived where you use printed ballots instead of election machines, as we do in Birmingham.)

NOTICE!

To Our Customers:
Effective November 2, 1940, the October statements and cancelled vouchers will be ready for delivery on that day; thereafter all customers' statements will be ready for delivery on the second day of the month instead of the first day as in the past. This change is necessitated due to a revision in the operation of our Bookkeeping Department. We solicit your cooperation in this regard.

Anti-Competition State Ballot No. 4
November 5 on
With not a dime's worth of revenue at stake, Stuart Perry, editor of the Adrian Daily Telegram, urges a "no" vote on State Ballot No. 4—the dental anti-competition act, which goes before the voters at the November election.

Bills to Kill Competition
The anti-advertising movement in the legislature is to come to a head in the senate tomorrow in the form of a final showdown on the bill (State Ballot No. 4) prohibiting the advertising of prices by dentists.

Crowd Braves Rain to Greet Nominee

Despite the rain, a crowd of about 300 gathered at Baldwin High School last Thursday night to greet Henry A. Wallace, Democratic candidate for Vice President. Murray D. Van Wagoner, candidate for Governor, and other Democratic nominees who were included in the auto caravan which began at Grand Rapids and ended in Detroit.

Wallace dined first at the home of his sister, Mrs. Angus D. McPherson, 715 Washington. He then attended a torchlight procession, led by the Community House.

Wallace in Birmingham INSTITUTE

Wallace visited Birmingham on his way to Detroit. He has been connected with education work in Michigan, having served at one time as principal in Grosse Pointe Park, Mich., Detroit and in Plymouth, Mich. He is now an assistant principal and director of child guidance at the Jackson school system.

Wallace was accompanied by Miss Anne Sprague, who will lead the discussion on voluntary social service work on the advisory service staff of the Merrill-Palmer School in Detroit. Miss Sprague is considering an authority in her field having set up eight years ago the College Women's Volunteer Service. She is executive secretary of that group today.

FIRES
