Baldwin Library Will Have Exhibit Week End of Nov. 9

Two hundred new books, selected from the fall lists of all publishers, will be on display in the Book Fair to be held at the Baldwin Library from Saturday, Nov. 9, to Monday, Nov. 11, it has been announced by Mrs. Fred Farrar, who made the arrangements.

Mrs. Olive Deane Hornel, lecturer for the University Extension Service, is loaning the exhibit, which has been made possible through the cooperation of the publishers. Incidentally, Miss Hornel's course on current books and plays is the only one of its kind to have the full cooperation of both publishers and producers.

Working on this exhibit are Mrs. Milo M. Bostwick, Mrs. Fred D. Farrar and Miss Adeline Cooke. Of the sixteen exhibits in the fair, one titled "The Horizon" is of particular interest, for it displays books about to be released by the publishers. It has been given Miss Hornel special permission to show.

Miss Crawford, Arthur J. Brandt, Jr., Married Saturday Evening in Detroit

Pale ivory duchesse satin forming the bride's gown Saturday evening when Betty Jane Crawford and Arthur John Brandt, Jr., were married at the Woodward Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The gown was fashioned with shirring outlining the neckline and extending the bodice and sleeves long and tight and pointed over the wrists. Her illusion veil was edged with wide Carrick Macross lace from her mother's wedding gown and the lace was also used to form the Juliet cap which was embroidered with heirloom pearls. Lilies of the valley and orchids formed her bouquet.

Lenore Warner was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Margaret Jean Cogsdill, Irene Masgrove, Amy Sanders, Dorothy Tydeman, of LaGrange, Ill., and Chloe Ann Van Schoek, of Hanover.
