

FALL SPORTSWEAR LURES MEN OUT TO PLAY

Soft White Shirts Of Ornate Style OK'd for Tuxedo

With half the world at war and conditions everywhere unsettled, there is a noticeable trend toward comfort and informality in men's clothes. Nowhere is this evidenced more than in formal wear, particularly the tuxedo or dinner jacket.

Perhaps the most noticeable change in formal clothes for men during the coming fall and winter will be the almost universal adoption of the soft white shirt to wear with the tuxedo.

Several years ago, when this fashion first started, many skeptics were doubtful if the stiff bosomed shirt and the wing collar would ever be replaced as standard evening wear. Gradually the turned-down stiff collar was replaced by the wing type. That was followed by the semi-stiff collar-attached shirt, and now, finally, as another step toward comfort in dress, men everywhere have taken to soft shirts for evening wear.

These shirts come in a variety of styles—some with plaited bosoms, some of soft pique and some plain linen. The cuffs are of French style fastened by links and regulation evening studs are usually used in place of buttons in front. These shirts are not only more comfortable for both winter and summer wear, but they will also prove a factor in putting men in dress clothes more easily and more often.

Double Breasted Ease

The double-breasted tuxedo continues its popularity and midnight blue again seems to be a favorite shade. This seems to be another departure from the old time standard which called for black in evening clothes. Most of the double-breasted jackets have two buttons, of which the lower one is used. The lapels are peaked, and while they may often be faced with either satin or grosgrain, the latter is standard.

Another innovation in adoption in evening clothes is the comfort of the cummerbund for winter as well as summer use with the double-breasted jacket. This is often worn with the single-breasted jacket as well, and replaces the satin or silk waistcoat, formerly considered necessary with the tuxedo.

The midnight blue tie, which since several years ago, has been generally adopted by the younger men. It has plain ends and vies in popularity with the black tie.

Accessories

Many men are wearing lightweight black or midnight blue hose with tuxedos, and for the man who wears wool the year-round, these have an advantage over regular black silk socks. The latter, however, are still worn generally.

Tail coats, which are increasing in popularity, and are now a part of the wardrobe of many college men, are also to be seen in midnight blue instead of the former black. Most of these, like the dinner jacket, are of plain color worsted, although some of them have a small interwoven herringbone design. The tail coat, unlike the tuxedo, should have a satin lapel and call for a single-breasted three-button white pique vest.

RELAX between classes! Casual comfort and good appearance are the "motto" for college men this fall. The new ensemble above, of Crown Tested Snow Rayon, is equally suitable for leisure study or between-class sports.

Boys' Wardrobe Easy to Supply

Mothers who are baffled by the problems presented in outfitting their fast-growing boys for another season, will find the suggestions that follow helpful in showing them—and their family budgets—the light of day.

One sweater is essential—but every boy can use a few in sleeveless and long sleeve styles, in plain knit and cable-stitch patterns; in practical, dark colors.

Aside from the boy's sports jacket, he'll require an outer jacket of leather or warm wool for outdoor play all through the late fall and winter.

He'll need a raincoat too—whether it's of the kind that goes over other outer garments and folds away when not in use—or a reversible tweed coat waterproofed on one side.

Gloves to keep his hands warm; a couple of suits of pajamas for night comfort while asleep; a sturdy belt.

Ensembles made of rayon fabrics are in strong demand among the younger generation—and with good reason. Smart and practical, they combine the casual comfort that school life demands, with a grown-up dignity of appearance.

Rayon ensemble fabrics span a wide range of novel and interesting weaves. Equally notable, too, are the distinctive color effects of the new garments.

Getting down to braces, destined to be most popular are the streamlo (clip-on) elastic braces with custom adjustable back construction. English type leather ends distinguish another type of belt in tweed pattern elastic, and in some herringbone pattern.

Idle Basements Are Put to Work

By partitioning of the basements of old and new houses, the idle spaces in many cellars can be put to useful purpose. Following the preparation of a careful plan, a number of improvements to the basement are possible with funds obtained from qualified private lending institutions under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

THE HOODED SURCOAT has three slide fasteners—one on the body of the garment, one to release the hood as a big collar, and one on its own pocket.

AT-EASE for the great outdoors, is this camel hair coat with railroad stitching and concealed slide fastener.

Yes! Wear Glass

EARLY AMERICAN SANDWICH GLASS inspires new belts and braces. The pliable belts above go with an outer garment because of their transparency. And the cracked effect characteristic of Sandwich glassware gives them a precious look. Belts by Pioneer.
