Bears Reported Near Newberry

NEWBERRY — Tourists using Lake Superior state forest campgrounds near here are being advised to keep food stores securely locked when they leave camp, to keep them safe from bears attracted to the vacant cars, tents and trailers by smells of bacon, ham, honey and berries.

Saverel campers returning to their tents after dark have been reported routed by bears which were themselves so scared they clawed their way out through the canvas. Bears have been reported at High Bridge and Pratt Lake campgrounds and CCC Camp Lake Superior.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY . . . By George

"I'm just looking around, my good man . . . I'm interested only in places where there's nothing to do."

WHO CAN BEAT THIS RECORD?

Married 80 years, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Gobeen of Lacus, Ia., claim the record of being the longest married couple in the United State. Mrs. Goben is a native of Cambridge, O. They met when they were 15, married at 18 and are now 96 years old. They are parents of five living children, 16 grandchildren, 23 great grandchildren, and 2 great-great grandchildren.

His Nose Knows

Buddy (aged seven)—We've got to have roast chicken for dinner.

Older Sister—You overheard mother say so, Buddy—No, I oversmelled it cooking.

Not Accommodating

An angler who had been trying in hook something for the last few hours was sitting gloomily at his task when a mother and her small son came along.

"Oh," cried the boy, "let me see you catch a fish."

Addressing the angler, the mother said severely, "Now, don't catch a fish for him until he says please."

Guide to Classic Newly Published

The Robert Schalkenbach Foundation, 32 East 29th Street, New York, announces the publication of a guide to aid the study of the writings of political economy based on the text of "Progress and Poverty," by Henry George.

The Guide is in the form of questions and answers and divides the book into fifteen sections or lessons. It explores George's historical theories in the cause of poverty, and the remedy, a remedy with which economists agree, but which have successfully confused.

Publication announcement of the Guide received an enthusiastic welcome. More than 200 colleges in the United States are represented in the requests for it, which have come from professors of economics, sociology, history, government and political science.

John Dewey gives his approval to the guide and the use of "Progress and Poverty" as a text with a foreword in which he says:

"'Progress and Poverty' is one of the world's classics. While it falls logically in the field of economics it is one of the comparatively few books in that field that links economics with politics, sociology, ethics, and, in consequence, is of moral study for the student of government, social affairs and as well as economics.

"Domestic conditions have forced attention to the free access by the inhabitants of a country to land, in which are included the natural resources that lie above and under water, as well as farms and building sites. Present international conditions, the world war included, point with increased emphasis to the fact that the problem is of equal importance in all questions and issues arising in the intercourse of the nations of the earth with one another. That personal likes in a dream-world who believes war can be permanently averted and helpful cooperative relations of the peoples of the earth established until the question is faced of free access of populations to the resources nature has provided for the common use of mankind.

"Because of my conviction that no person is properly educated today without acquaintance with the problem and with the solution advanced by Henry George, I am happy to write this Foreword. Whether study of the book leads or does not lead a student to acceptance of the views put forth by George, it will immensely widen and broaden his understanding of the world in which he lives and equip him to deal with the menacing problems it presents.

"The Guide which is here offered bears on its face the proof that it is a careful and competent aid to any student who is given the great opportunity of becoming acquainted with a book which will enable him to approach social and international problems in a totally important perspective which might otherwise escape his vision."
