Pep-Up Tired Appetites By Serving Attractive Puddings Made of Milk

In summer when appetites falter and it's hard to persuade the youngsters to take their quota of milk, why not give it to them in the form of pudding? A delicately flavored pudding, chilled to the right degree, served in colorful glassware, will please the most fastidious.

Peach Floating Islands

Scald 1½ cups of milk in the double boiler, beat 2 egg yolks with 3 tablespoons of sugar and 1-8 teaspoon of salt. Pour the hot milk slowly over the mixture, whipping all the time. Cook over boiling water until the liquid thickens, taking care not to cook too long, then strain and chill. When cold mix with 1 cup of peaches cut in slices and sweetened to taste; arrange in sherbet glasses and top with the islands. Serve very cold. To make the islands, whip the whites of 2 eggs to a stiff dry froth, adding 3 tablespoon of sugar and ½ teaspoon of vanilla. Drop by spoonfuls on boiling water set in the oven just long enough to tint the islands, skim from the water, chill. Arrange on the peach custard. Browned shredded coconut or sliced almonds, toasted, sprinkled over the top, give added color and attractiveness.

Snow Pudding

1 quart thin cream.
9 tablespoons cornstarch.
5 egg whites.
1 teaspoon almond flavoring.

Heat the cream to nearly boiling point, then stir in quickly the cornstarch which has been blended with a little cold milk, and sweeten to taste. Allow to boil gently for 2 or 3 minutes, stirring constantly, then quickly add the stiffly beaten egg whites. Do not allow mixture to boil up but once after the eggs are added. Flavor with almond extract. Lay the snow thus formed in rocky heaps on a silver or glass dish.

Swedish Kumble Kake

3 eggs.
1 cup sugar.
½ cup walnuts.
1 cup soft bread crumbs.
1 cup chopped dates.

Beat eggs until very light. Add sugar gradually, thin bread crumbs, dates and nut meats. Spread 3-4 of an inch thick in a shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven for about 3-4 of an hour. It should be moist. Cool, break into small pieces and place in sherbet glasses. Serve with whipped cream. Add to the whipped cream, vanilla, almond and powdered sugar or a little sherry or rum flavoring. Do not whip the cream too stiff and put a little in the bottom of the glass as well as on top.

Orange Souffle

3 tablespoons shortening.
2½ tablespoons flour.
¼ cup milk.
½ cup orange juice.
½ teaspoon grated orange rind.
½ cup sugar.
3 eggs beaten separately.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Melt the shortening in a saucepan, stir in the flour and then the milk. Cook for a few minutes until thick, stirring constantly to keep lumps from forming. Remove from fire. Add the orange and lemon juice, orange peel and sugar. Add the egg yolks, well beaten, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Pour into a greased baking dish 7 inches in diameter and 3 inches deep. Place the dish in a pan of hot water and bake in oven 350 degrees until firm in center. Serve with whipped cream.

Chocolate Pudding

3 eggs beaten separately.
½ cup sugar.
1 tablespoon gelatin.
½ cup cold water.
½ cup boiling water.
6 tablespoons cocoa.
1 cup cream.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Th stiffly beaten egg whites, add the sugar, then add well-beaten yolks. Beat together and set aside. Pour cold water over gelatin, after a few minutes add boiling water. Then add cocoa. Beat well with a rotary beater. Add to egg mixture; flavor with vanilla. Pour into tray of automatic refrigerator. Do not freeze but chill thoroughly. Serve in slices.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Intellectually, as well as politically, the direction of all true progress is toward greater freedom, and along an endless succession of ideas.—Bovee.

Yards of Fish

It takes a yardstick to measure this giant 196½-pound marlin swordfish. Angler Fran McKinley hauled this one in after a battle lasting almost an hour and a half, at Santa Catalina, Calif. Barbara Vokes, Detroit, Mich., does the measuring.

Statistics Are First Step in Engineering For Auto Safety, Says National Council

CHICAGO—A traffic accident statistic is not the lifeless product of slide rule and square root. Production it may seem to be, according to the National Safety Council.

And whether the public's conception of the job of the traffic accident statistician is not an in-law relative of the Grim Reaper, he does not sit mostly in his rooming house, doing a grisly job of tabbing death figures as they pile up.

More Than Dot on Chart

A traffic death does become a dot on a chart. But to a competent safety statistician it becomes far more than an unemotional ink-on-paper mark.

Like the molecule, microbe or star dust of a disturbed universe to the scientist, the accident statistic seems with information to be broken down into meaningful, effective, accident-prevention parts.

Several years ago, a midwestern state decided too many pedestrians were being killed on rural highways and that rural highway sidewalks were the remedy. Her debate as to where the sidewalks should be built, many miles of habit youngsters have of sneaking from rural highways into the path of a truck, or the ridiculous chance of getting a motor vehicle tow on the number of pedestrians killed them rapidly through traffic on their bicycles, is about the most dangerous thing they could do.

And a complete statistical record of the location of the accidents said Safety Council, "while this sort of hit-and-miss thinking is very dangerous, and should be consistently discouraged, only one is every bank of school children kissed for having a ride. Ordinary playing in the roadway" is responsible for 1 in every hundred accidents involving school children. And still more ordinary crossings or streets between intersections dodging out from behind parked cars, responsible for more than 50 of every hundred fatal traffic accidents among the youngsters.

"But the police department, safety authorities and parents do have such information as this, as it applies in their own communities, unless complete and accurate statistical records are kept. Without such knowledge, time and money frequently are spent futilely, often frantically, in blind efforts to correct accident problems."

Another Example

Another example: Joe Doakes, a citizen in any town, calls the city hall and demands that a stop-and-go light be installed at his corner. How many two-vehicle accidents were they right angle, rear-end or head-on collisions?

Statistics indicate that poor visibility, not speed, is the trouble and that a traffic light isn't the remedy. Armed with these statistics, the city traffic engineer suggests that Mr. Doakes uproot three or four bushes that are blocking the view of drivers across the corner as they approach the intersection. Doakes complies.

The accidents stop.

Hunch Wrong Again

Still another example:

Offhandedly it would seem that the chief statistician for the National Safety Council is growing to decay.—George MacDonald.

All growth that is not toward God, is growing to decay.—George MacDonald.

Hunters Should Learn Range of Their Guns

LANSING—Duck season opening is still two months away, but conservation department officials already are reminding hunters it is not too early to begin learning the range of their guns, to prevent unnecessary wounding of waterfowl by "spent shot."

About one out of every five ducks hit but not instantly killed is not retrieved and dies later of body wounds, according to reliable estimates. In examining 418 retrieved ducks with X-ray machines recently, conservation department game men discovered 125 of them carrying shot. Many others carrying shot. Many others wounded and unretrieved could not be expected to recover as these did.

Though varying factors are involved, such as choke, or muzzle bore, and wind velocity, game men say the average 12 gauge gun carries about 50 yards, the average 16 gauge about 50 yards and an average 20 gauge about 45 yards. Hunters uncertain of distances may pace decoys or markers at maximum ranges from blinds and hold fire unless ducks are well within effective hitting range.

Let us labor for that larger comprehension of truth, and that more thorough repudiation of error, which shall make the history of mankind a series of ascending developments.—Horace Mann.
