Most drivers know the proper procedure for attaching their chains to the car when it slings into a skid. By way of review when the rear end slides to the right, steer the car in the direction which the rear end is skidding. Don't "fight" the skid; ease out if it gradually This technique, when you're bent back to your back wheels. For example, if you're skidding to the right, you'll want to turn the wheel to the left. And don't forget to ease out when you're skidding to the left.
