Unstable Home Life Cited As Cause Of Delinquency

John Pritchard, psychologist for the Detroit Board of Education, was the speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Exchange Club.

Hereafter, during July and August, there will be semi-monthly out-of-doors social meetings. July 8 there will be a picnic at Esch's park, with the Lions Club in attendance also. July 23, the club will fete Farmington Exchangites at Oliver Kirk's home in Southfield Township. On Aug. 6, Perry Vaughan, Bloomfield Township, will be host; and on Aug. 20, the club will meet at Harold Kuhn's cottage, Watkins Lake.

Pritchard told how a staff of 25 works out programs in the Detroit schools to give special help to maladjusted children who give trouble because of two broad reasons: (1) Inferior mental ability; (2) unstable homes.

"If ever there is emotional trouble, even in your own life, look for insecurity. That is usually the basis of it," he declared.

Home conditions are the most decisive factor, he declared.

He cited one example of how a child was helped when the parents were convinced that members should eat their meals at the same time. That small matter made a big difference; it added a sense of stability, he said.

Spend 2 Millions For High Fences

Enough 10-foot non-climbable fence to stretch in an unbroken link from Chicago to St. Louis, and a sufficient number of floodlights to erect 59 to every mile of that fence, will be required in a $2,882,400 project approved by the War Department today for the fencing and lighting of "critical" areas at 95 posts and camps in all parts of the country.

Nash Sleeper Sedan

The Nash sleeper sedan, which has made a hit with sportsmen, salesmen and tourists who like to sleep "out," appears in improved form this year. The new bed can be made up in three minutes. The rear seat slides out on a folding track, hidden beneath the seat. The rear seat back is lifted to the top of the car and fastened, and a hinged shelf is dropped down from behind this seat. A shelf over the spare tire folds forward, and all is fitted with a mattress. Sheets and blankets are put in place, and the bed is ready. Complete security is offered as the car can be locked from the inside. Birmingham's new Nash agency is at 467 South Woodward.

Rules for Pensioners Who Get Jobs

Retired workers drawing Federal old-age insurance benefits who take jobs available to older people as a result of the National Defense Program will be entitled to their benefits when they again quit work, Richard H. Hendrick, manager of the Social Security Board office at Pontiac, said today.

He explained that under the law monthly benefit payments are discontinued during the time when a worker has a job in covered employment paying $15 or more a month. A worker past 65 who has retired and begun receiving his monthly old-age insurance payments is required to notify the Social Security Board if he should at any time work for wages of $15 or more a month in employment covered by the law, Mr. Hendrick said. He added that the worker is not entitled to an insurance payment for any month in which he is so employed, and that if he fails to notify the Social Security Board he may lose more than that month's benefit. However, when he stops work or losses his job he should notify the Social Security Board at once, and his monthly retirement benefits will begin again, without delay.

Supervisors Get Bookmobile Bid

At the quarterly meeting of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors held Monday, the request for a bookmobile library service to rural areas and schools was presented by Mrs. Cora Farrar of Birmingham. Mrs. Martha C. Smith, director of the State-wide library project of WPA, described the general service to new county libraries.

The request was referred to the Miscellaneous Committee for further study and report at a later meeting. Twas were added to the committee: Harry J. Merritt, County civil counsel, and J. E. Harris, former superintendent of Pontiac schools.

Necessity for prompt decisions was stressed at the meeting, in view of the July 1 deadline for qualifying for state funds. This deadline was pointed out, that the Supervisors, prior before July 1, must by formal resolution establish said services. Failure to meet this deadline would prevent State funds becoming available for establishment before July 1, 1942.

Twas's request to the Board of Supervisors was specifically for $1,500 to buy a bookmobile truck. Salaries for driver, catalogues and clerk would be furnished by the WPA statewide library service. The book collection would be paid for out of the State aid established grant. Headquarters of the library and the bookmobile itself would be located in County buildings. If the Supervisors pass favorably on the proposal and meet the June 30 deadline, it is expected that service could begin this year. A special service to the already existing libraries, such as Pontiac, specialized stress would be laid on the selection of new, up-to-date technical books for defense workers, a need which is now being inadequately met from existing collections. With the opening of rural schools in the Fall, schedules would be made up for providing loans of books on regular calls.

SPEEDER PAYS $35

Harry M. Smith, of 120 East University, Royal Oak, was fined $35 for leading Bloomfield Hills police on a 77-miles-an-hour chase on Opdyke road to Pontiac, June 21. He appeared before Justice B. A. O'Dell Tuesday night.

Fountain by Milles Given University

ANN ARBOR—A fountain by the world-famous sculptor, Carl Milles, given in honor of the late Judge Thomas McIntyre Cooley, was formally presented to the University of Michigan on June 21, as a part of the commencement week-end festivities. Milles is sculptor at Cranbrook Academy of Art.

Gift of alumnus Charles Baird, graduate of the Literary College and the Law School in the class of 1895, the fountain is located on the campus mall opposite the Burton Memorial Tower which houses the famous Baird carillon.

The fountain depicts a Triton swimming out to sea with the young Tritons clinging shudder to their father's back. The inscription describes the scene as "Sunday Morning In Deep Waters," and the apprehensive expression on the children's faces implies that this is an unusual outing for the little fellows, who ordinarily must play in shallower water.

Like all mythological Tritons in Greek mythology, the father is blowing a conchshell trumpet to soothe the restless waves as he leads his way through the watery school of fish accompany the family on their excursion, and the whole group is enveloped in a sweeping, driving spray.

The characteristic strength and vigor of Milles' style is expressed by the magnificent power of the adult Triton. Simply executed, the composition readily conveys to the spectator the spirit of utter light-heartedness which the sculptor intended to achieve.

The major and minor figures of the group are done in bronze contrasted with a green patina, and the central figure is set on a block of Minnesota granite. The pool around the fountain is 20 by 30 feet and is 18 inches deep. Pumps in a chamber under the fountain recirculate the water.

Thomas M. Cooley, in whose memory the fountain is being dedicated, was one of the original faculty of the University's Law School. As professor of law and later as professor of American history and constitutional law he served the University from 1857 until his death in 1898. He was a judge of the Michigan Supreme Court for 21 years, chairman of the first Interstate Commerce Commission, and is widely known for his legal and historical writings.

SAGINAW—"Not guilty" was the verdict handed down for a pheasant by Conservation Officer Herbert Lees and conservation department game men stationed on Prairie Farm after studying the crop of a cock pheasant accused by a Saginaw farmers of pulling up young corn. The examination indicated the bird had been feeding on caterpillars, grain seed, sweet clover greens and several species of weed seeds.

The average bluegill caught by Michigan anglers, according to conservation department creel census records for the last five years, is 7½ inches long.

Congressional Comment by Representative George A. Dondero

Farmer Versus Union

At the unanimous demand that George R. Simmons, a Novi township fruit grower, join the teamsters' union in order to dispose of his fruit at the Union Produce Terminal in Detroit, came to the attention of Congress when Congressman George A. Dondero read his letter into the U. S. House of Representatives.

The letter follows:

"We have been selling our apples at the Union Produce Terminal in Detroit, and were informed this morning by a representative of the union that we (the owners) would have to join the teamsters' union or we would not be allowed to haul our own produce, or haul away our empty crates; $25 to join, and $2 per month dues.

"I believe you are acquainted with the situation, and know what fruit growers are up against. If it has taken a struggle to make ends meet for the past several years,

"Please advise me if this condition is going to be allowed to exist. Is this the kind of democracy we are going all out to defend and maintain?

"I am a World War veteran, treasurer of Novi township, and have been growing fruit on this place for the past 30 years."

Commenting upon the letter, Rep. Dondero said "If government, local, State, or national, will not protect the American farmer in his efforts to sell the products of his own labor from that kind of racketeering, then the time is not far distant when he will be forced to unite and invoke the age-old rule that self-preservation is the first law of nature"—Record 4794.
