Softball Loop Starts Next Week Tuesday

Birmingham's Recreation Softball League will get under way next Tuesday night, it was announced Wednesday by Lloyd G. Chapman, director. The first game will be held at Barnum School grounds, and Mayor John E. Mirrk will be asked to toss out the first ball. Other city officials and members of the Recreation Commission will be present.

A final organization meeting for managers will be held at the Community House at 8 p. m. Monday. All managers must be there if their team is to be included in the league, Chapman announced.

Following the opening game Tuesday night, regular games will start on Wednesday night, with contests set for Barnum and Torrey Fields.

An eight-team league is in prospect. Last Wednesday night, a first meeting was held, and the following teams were represented by their managers: North End Athletic Club, Tom Vasher; Day-ner's Market, William Dayner; M. S. C. P., Bill Cobb; Sumner Buick (last year's champs), Paul Poter; Babcock & Salisbury, Bob Brown.

It was first decided that in order to have a strong league, the membership is to be confined to eight teams. The first eight teams to have their registration fee in and their list of players listed by Monday night, June 2, will make up the league. No other teams will be admitted after that date.

After some discussion it was decided not to attempt to pay the umpires this year, although such a plan might be worked out for next year.

War Relief Play Enjoyed by Crowd Friday Evening

More than enough for two hospital beds was realized from Friday night's British War Relief benefit performance of "Murder in Rehearsal" at the Village Playhouse. The play was written by Austin Goetz, and was revamped to fit the local situation in Birmingham. Its net profit was $84.

Directed by Mrs. Harrison J. Stringham, assisted by Shirley Chmmade, the play proved to be an amusing comedy-murder. The scenes were laid in the Playhouse on the evening of a last dress rehearsal. The audience was successfully fooled into thinking that an accidental murder had been committed in rehearsal, until the surprise ending when Ward Cruickshank, as Jack Ellery, who was supposedly dead, came tearing upon the stage to congratulate the players on their good performance.

Ed Driscoll did a very convincing piece of work as Sheriff Cullen, and Ethyl Patterson was a riot in her role as the stupid maid, Phyllis Reaney played the leading feminine role, Claudia Warren, and Gertrude Rogerson took the part of Claudia's mother, Mrs. Fiske Warren. John Finch did a good job of keeping the public sure that he was the villian, while Bill McCall and Bob Noyes and Butch Forbes and Mike Carmichael, the town toughs, provided no end of amusement.

Doris Protheroe, as Sheila Burnett, was Claudia's rival for Jack Ellery, and Esther Smith and Barbara Case played the part of disappointed actresses who didn't make the play. Kenton Shaver took the part of soda dispenser, who was supposed to have accidentally put arsenic in a soft drink.

Yakichiro Suma, Japanese Minister to Spain:

"There is no danger whatsoever of any United States-Japanese hostilities."

SALES

Birmingham, and declared that any group of merchants, to win maximum patronage within their trading area, "must first sell themselves on the virtue and value of a sales event, then sell their complete organization, and then tell their potential patrons about it in the most forceful method possible. After all, it is possible to win success in a sales campaign only when every factor involved works as a team."

Mr. Warmee illustrated his points by comparing the retail merchandising business with that of automobile selling, an activity which he is thoroughly familiar with on a nation-wide basis. He suggested that local merchants, as a stimulant to greater store sales, offer a prize for "the most efficient sales person during your coming 'Talk of the Town' sales event in June."

Buck Shows Movies

As an adjunct to his talk, Mr. Warmee called upon Ward Buck, local resident, who presented a talking picture entitled "The Face in the Mirror"; this picture, a product of the Sam Handy Corporation, of Detroit, with which Mr. Buck is connected, splendidly revealed the most successful methods of retail selling. It pointed out the value of sincere, helpful, and intelligent retail sales efforts on the part of store clerks. Mr. Warmee, in praising the picture, stated that he has had it shown to Pontiac dealers and salesmen all over the United States.

Charles J. Shain, president of the Birmingham Retail Merchants Association, presided at the Monday evening meeting, which was attended by 50 local men and women.

THE ECCENTRIC'S CAMERA CORNER

The changing foliage and pleasant weather of autumn make it an ideal season for outdoor snapshooting—whether in black-and-white or full-color, of color that will add appeal to your fall-color shots.

AUTUMN, with its bright hues, pleasant weather, and feeling of seasonal change, is one of the most delightful times of the year to be outdoors. And it is a time rich in picture material—a perfect season to load up your camera, climb in the car or out on hiking boots, and go afield with an eye alert for picture chances.

Look for these picture opportunities in harvest scenes . . . on the farms . . . wherever there is rural activity. Watch the skies for cloud formations that will add glory to your landscape shots. As leaves begin to fall, and bonfires are burning, look for atmospheric effects — sunbursts slanting through trees and smoke—for these too will make fine pictures.

If your camera can be loaded with full-color film, by all means plan to take advantage of the brilliant colors as leaves begin to change and assume their autumnal hues. And look for color-filming opportunities in the orchards where bright-colored fruit hangs against the green of trees. If you go on group hikes at this ideal hiking season, see that members of your crowd wear suitable costumes—with bright touches of color that will add appeal to your fall-color shots.

In black-and-white shooting, keep a color filter on your lens to bring out the clouds in landscape shots, and harvest scenes. Don't confine yourself to general scenics and views—keep an eye open for close-ups that reflect the spirit of the season. Let your pictures show people at work . . . plucking fruit, husking corn, perhaps sowing winter cover crops, so that your autumn record will really portray the time of year and its typical activities.

If you picnic at this season—and you should—you'll find the camera an ideal means of recording your outdoor fun. Wherever you go . . . whatever you do . . . picture opportunities are waiting—and the wise snapshooter will try to utilize them all.

John van Guilder

PHOTO-TIP: On outings, hikes or picnics, carry a roll of high speed film—the kind for night snapshots. It's four times as fast as regular daylight film, and comes in handy for snaps in late afternoon or in shady spots such as the picnic grove.

Junior Musicale Displays Talent to Pleased Group

FENTON R. MATHEWS

The program of most value given by the Birmingham Musicale this year was that presented Thursday evening at the Community House.

At this time, the Junior Musicale, that group of young musicians who will become the future professionals, gave a splendid program. To those familiar with this group it must be said that for genuine interest and happiness, it has the edge on most any unit banded together to escape the passing of inexorable time. Added to the social aspect of this group there is the evidence of creation and constructive thinking; a worthwhile inner satisfaction, and a positive knowledge that only good is going into the product to be given to a dulled world. These young people are not groping; they see an objective, and hammer relentlessly for results which is just another term for the word practice.

The Performers

The large audience showed pleasure at the achievement of the various performers who were as follows:

Piano: Ruth Minks, Jean Stoffregen, Marilyn McIntyre, Cherry Kobersman, Mary Ellen Hauck, Ella Clark, Mary Bringhurst, John Fenton Mathews, Constance Coulter, Dorothy Ollis, and Erica Williams; clarinet, Francis Buckeridge; accordion, Jack Poorman; tuba, Robert Pack; trombone, David Wheeler; clarinet, Harold Jones; violin, Richard Andrade; vocal solo, Joan Birthrong, and dance by Stephanie Buckeridge.

The Junior Musicale Chorus, composed of ten of these young performers, sang three numbers, one being the Pilgrim's Song by Tschaikowsky. Solo parts were sung by Joan Birthrong, William Murch, and Elaine Swelgin. The chorus was directed by Robert Wing with a splendid accompaniment by Virginia Nicholson.

Other Accompanists

Other accompanists for these young people were Mrs. Arnold Berndt, Ella Clark, Paul Heinsohn, Charles Tapner and June Van De Walker.

A cogent and pertinent bit of logic is always apparent to those with wide open minds. At affairs of this kind, where young people reveal their charm and intelligence and demonstrate creative ability, there is always absent those groups who are interested in preying upon them later and arranging for their departure from this earth at an early date. Reference is made of these citizens who are interested in the votes of these young folks and lining them up into groups that must of necessity deprive them of individual thinking, also of those who are keen about war, glory, and absentee patriotism as a means of progress or civilization when these young folks demand an example of these leaders who preach but what they practice.

Congratulations to the Birmingham Musicale for the tendency toward building and releasing the talent of these young people who will be the means of restoring sanity to a world that we are energetically straining to imbalance!

Success to these young performers and may they never forget their understanding of music! It will be found an extraordinary release from the turmoil that others now wish to entwine about them.
