Says Newspapers Helped Build Firm Appreciation of the services of American newspapers to the public, a whole, and to rights in particular, was expressed by Albert E. Morill, president of the Kruger-Towers and Being Co., in commenting on National Newspaper Week, Oct. 1 to 8.

The Kruger president pointed out that his firm has been a consistent newspaper advertiser for nearly 60 years and carries its advertising regularly in more than 1,300 daily and weekly papers throughout the Middle West and South. Last year the company spent approximately $6,650,000 to display space in these papers.

We feel that the steady growth of our company from one small store in Cincinnati, O., to its present size and varied product field would have been impossible without the help of newspapers.
