

HOUSEWIFE

(You take the list and examine it. You see that a number of commodities—including certain important foods—are definitely excluded from ceilings.)
You: "Hmmm. So I mustn't expect to find ceiling prices on fresh fruits and vegetables. Well, that's all right with me. I wouldn't want to pay March prices every day for strawberries and asparagus."
Grocer: "Not necessarily. You see, the ceiling price is the highest March price in any one store. Now, different stores have always charged different prices. My store is strictly cash-and-carry. Maybe your friend's store delivers and has charge accounts. So your costs are different and your prices are bound to be too. But we cannot sell for higher than our own ceiling price."
You: Well, then, it still pays me to shop around and find out where the best buys are. Ceiling prices are too—they may be lower than the ceiling—it's up to me to find out where my pennies will buy the most. (Pause) Now let's see. A pound of butter, please.
Grocer: Forty cents.
You: But I distinctly remember paying 39 cents for butter in March!
Grocer: Yes, but you see, butter is one of the foods that has not been placed under a price ceiling. Look, here's a list of things that are exceptions to price control.

barrier tells me beauty and hair care shops don't come under price control. Just services like manicures, just services like manicures, just services like manicures... Mrs. Merrill: "I am a mother of three children who are in the public schools. I have a car and a house. I am a member of the church. I am a member of the church. I am a member of the church."
Praises Draft Board: "I have heard here immensely" and Mrs. Merrill, who plans to return September 1 to her home at Milton, near Boston, Massachusetts. She has a son who is a sophomore at Dartmouth College and a daughter in Milton College, a high school senior.

MRS. MERRILL. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the Hill Farm Home for Earl Williams Carten, 9014 Broad street, who died at his residence early Thursday morning, following an illness of approximately eight years. Dr. W. Glen Harris operated at the services and burial was at Oak View Cemetery in Royal Oak. Mr. Carten was born in Detroit, attended public schools and was graduated from Cass Technical High School there. He moved to Birmingham, from Detroit four years ago. Mr. Carten was employed as a machine operator at the Federal Mergal Corp. in Detroit. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Carten, of Detroit; his wife, Mildred M. Leach Carten, of Birmingham; and two children, Jane Shirley and Earl William, Jr., both at home.

Women Here OK War Work Program

Leading topic of conversation among women this week is the voluntary registration of women for war work, being carried on by the War Production Board. Registration cards were distributed to homes in Birmingham Monday, asking women to indicate whether or not they would be available for work in war plants, if necessary. This registration is a means of building up a reserve of available workers, so that if it becomes necessary within the next few months to call for more labor, workers will be available. A general telephone survey indicates that many local women are in favor of working in war plants if they are needed. Mrs. F. Farrington Holt, 372 Linden road, who met last F. Farrington Holt, F. S. N., commented, "I don't see anything I can do. I will do it, and I plan to work as hard as I can." Mrs. Turner A. Duncan, of Hipp Cross road, was one of the women who had not yet received a card. She said, "The extremely anxious to get my card, but I don't have it at once. I really want to get into actual war work as soon as possible. She has two small sons, but excellent help at home, so she does not need to worry about leaving them. Her husband is doing war work in Washington, D. C., where he will remain for the duration." Mrs. Herbert Poppleton, Southfield Apartments, "My card is mailed already. I said that I would be available for work, specifying clerical work as I had that kind of experience. I would just as soon do the other."

Why Don't You Subscribe? It's so easy that way to receive one's favored magazines that it has always been one of our major quarrels that most people do not do it. For besides the weekly or monthly bother of purchasing each time an issue is published—and sometimes missing a wanted copy besides that—our can't get money for nothing. So why not eliminate twice to buy two separate purchases each year—saving money, meanwhile and have your favored publications arrive at your home by mail on splendid schedule, just as soon as published. Which reminds us of the slogan of our nation's superb postal service: "Neither snow nor rain, nor gloom of night shall stay this country from the swift completion of their appointed rounds." We take subscriptions for all publications! This store will close at 5 p. m. Saturdays during August.

Obituary Earl William Carten. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the Hill Farm Home for Earl Williams Carten, 9014 Broad street, who died at his residence early Thursday morning, following an illness of approximately eight years. Dr. W. Glen Harris operated at the services and burial was at Oak View Cemetery in Royal Oak. Mr. Carten was born in Detroit, attended public schools and was graduated from Cass Technical High School there. He moved to Birmingham, from Detroit four years ago. Mr. Carten was employed as a machine operator at the Federal Mergal Corp. in Detroit. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Carten, of Detroit; his wife, Mildred M. Leach Carten, of Birmingham; and two children, Jane Shirley and Earl William, Jr., both at home.

Thomas F. Hudgins. Funeral services were held on Monday in Indianapolis, Ind., for Thomas F. Hudgins, 2204 North New Jersey street, Indianapolis. Mr. Hudgins was a brother-in-law of Mrs. W. W. Raymond, of Willett street, and a frequent visitor in Birmingham was well known here. Mr. Hudgins was born in Matthews county, Virginia, and lived there until he was 18 years old. He then became identified with the clothing business in St. Louis, Mo., later going on to Indianapolis, where at the time of his death he was owner of the Hudgins-Carter Company, men's wearing apparel concern. Surviving are his widow, Grace Hudson Hudgins; a daughter, Helen H., who lives at 26-1/2 a son, Thomas F. Hudgins, Jr., of Hartford, Conn., and one grandchild. Mrs. Ann L. Horwath. Mrs. Ann L. Horwath, former teacher of the High School, passed away at her farm home near Waldron, Mich., on Tuesday, Aug. 4, following a long illness. She is survived by her husband, Joseph J. Horwath, and one son, Jack.

When asked what her husband thought of the idea—she is a bride of four months—Mrs. Poppleton replied, "He's all for it. In fact he filled out the card for me." Mrs. Charles J. Shain, 813 Pierce street, for over 20 years conductor of Birmingham's International Relations Class: "Surely, I've sent my card in, saying that I would be available for part time work. I added that since working with my hands is not my strong forte, that I thought I would be of more value doing something in my professional line. However, if they want me for factory work, I will be glad to do it." Mrs. Walter R. Forbes, 1248 Edgewood, "I haven't received my card yet, but I think the registration is a wonderful idea. Personally, I'm handicapped in going into a factory by a three-month old baby; however, I will be more than willing to do part time work around town, if I can be of any help. I hope that women, particularly married women, don't get the idea that they should keep their jobs after the war—I think they should be careful to regard their work as purely temporary."
