

Science Teacher Visits Youth Gardens And Reports Fine Progress, Fine Food

Plans for an exhibit of produce from the home-school gardens are being formed. The committee hopes that every junior gardener will have some produce to exhibit by the last of September.

Mrs. S. Forman Wilson, science teacher at Barnum School, has made her garden tour and has a very interesting report on the progress of her student gardeners.

Persistence Shows

"One of the many things which interested me most in visiting our school gardens and gardeners was the persistence shown in spite of unfavorable locations and flood conditions in producing a root crop for the family table or market."

Perseverance Shows

"It gave me great satisfaction to hear their enthusiasm for eating the good vitamins produced. The theories of nutrition are excellent but the practice bears better fruit in healthy bodies. I noted also an increasing cooperation from the parents in the enterprise. The interest of members of the Garden Club has aided much in making the project worth while."

"The finest garden I visited both in respect to arrangement and care was that of Jane Abbott at 883 Edmonds. It was a perfect picture of what an excellent garden should look like and both parents denied giving her any aid. Don Turner at 1225 Bird Avenue had undertaken quite a large task in the family garden and with the guidance of his father, an experienced handler of clay soil, had learned to utilize his land to excellent advantage and the results in both vegetables and flowers made it a true victory garden."

Harry Sargent at 818 Smith showed me some excellent specimens of papaya and a good start in succession crops.

Fine Tomatoes

"Jimmy Tugzey at 1531 Cedar Drive proudly displayed a setting of tomatoes which surpassed those in the family garden. His contributions to the table have been generous enough to reward any one's efforts. John Dalton at 457

State May Cut Limit on Trout

LEWISTON—The question of cutting the creel limit on trout from 15 to 10 is being raised by the conservation department's institute for fisheries research since intensive checking at the Hunt Creek "gold laboratory" disclosed that less than five per cent of the anglers on conserved waters catch more than 10 legalized trout.

"Since the present limit is so seldom attained, the lower creel limit would have considerable psychological value, fisheries men point out. They also ask if it might not be more equitable to share the five extra fish now taken occasionally by the expert or lucky angler among the constantly-increasing members of the angling fraternity."

The fisheries research men say a limit of 10 trout also would be in keeping with regulations of several other progressive states in which trout fishing is an important feature.

NOW A CADET

Richard M. Darval, of Birmingham, is now an aviation cadet at the Army Air Base at Santa Ana, Calif. Darval enlisted in the Army Air Forces last February.

IN QUARTERMASTER SCHOOL

Franklin Whitney, former High School coach, is now a cadet at the Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va. His address is Co. C, 2nd Q. M. School Bgt.

PROMOTED IN INDIA

Lt. Walter A. Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Jensen, 647 Kennewick avenue, a member of the Army Ferry Command, has arrived in India and the day after his arrival received a promotion to captain. He wrote Aug. 15 and phenomenal air mail service brought the letter here in 10 days.

Capt. Jensen, a Baldwin High and University of Michigan graduate, went into the Air Corps after his graduation and served a year in the Philippines, before the war, of course. He then went into private aviation but was recalled by the Army when war came, and he made several ferry trips to Africa.

"I saw more geography and ancient history in one day than I know existed," he wrote of his flight to India. Lots of American food makes existence there O.K. Jensen is but 26 years old.

WAR is on the wires!

You know of Michigan's great contribution to the war effort in planes, tanks, trucks, guns and boats. But, do you realize how important telephone communication is to this huge volume of war production? In the building of a single heavy bomber, as many as 12,000 local and Long Distance telephone calls may be necessary! That's what we mean by "war is on the wires!"

Today Long Distance lines to the places listed at the right are carrying a staggering load of war calls. Any Long Distance call you make—particularly over these lines—may delay an important war message.

Because of material shortages, we can't add enough new lines to handle all the increased traffic. We must get along with what we have. Here are some ways you can help:

1. Make only the most essential Long Distance calls, and avoid these crowded lines especially.
2. Keep your conversations as brief as you can.
3. When possible, give the number of the distant telephone you are calling.

Remember that war is on local wires, too. Your own telephone line may never carry a war message, but every call you make passes through a central office switchboard that may be jammed with war calls. So try to keep all your conversations short!

War calls must go through!
