Hannikainen to Conduct Sibelius' 6th Symphony

A first performance in Detroit of Jan Sibelius' monumental Sixth Symphony, in D Minor, Op. 104, will feature the concert of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Thursday night, Jan. 29, in Masonic Auditorium. Tauno Hannikainen, fellow-countryman of the great Finnish composer, who directed the orchestra's all-Brahms concerts of last week, again will conduct.

The entire first half of the Jan. 29 program, in fact, will be devoted to the music of Sibelius. In addition to the Sixth Symphony there will be the Elegy and Musette, from "King Christian II," and "Lemminkainen Turns Homeward," (A Legend of Finland). After the intermission the orchestra will play the two Debussy nocturnes, "Nuages and Fetes, and Tschaikovsky's Fantasia, "Francesca da Rimini," Op. 32.

New Rules for Explosives

War-time restrictions on manufacture, sale, storage and use of explosives in Michigan became effective during the past week in an order issued by Commissioner Oscar G. Olander of the Michigan State Police. The 1941 legislature authorized the state police to draw up rules to carry out provisions of an act for the "prevention of fire and protection of the public."
