Noted Philosopher Will Talk Sunday, Cranbrook Church

The Rev. Charles H. Cadigan, rector of Christ Church Cranbrook, announces that the special guest preacher this coming Sunday morning, July 19, at 11 o'clock will be Professor Douglas Steere of Haverford College. Mr. Steere recently succeeded Rufus Jones, the well known Quaker, and assumed his chair in the Department of Philosophy and Psychology.

Mr. Steere is well known as an author and lecturer on subjects of religion and philosophy. His most recent book is entitled "Prayer and Worship."

In addition to his duties at Haverford College, Mr. Steere is the assistant director of the American Friends Service Committee and responsible for a series of summer social projects sponsored in this country. He returned to the United States in the spring of 1941, having reviewed the International Friends Service Camps in France and Germany.

The latter car's damages were estimated at $100; Miss Medbury's, $25. According to Police Sgt. Earl L. Moody, the youth's speed was apparently excessive.

The Golden Text (John 5:26) is: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (I John 1:5): "This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 289): "Because Life is God, Life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I AM, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase."

MORE GARDEN REPORTS

These hot summer days test the enthusiasm of our Victory Gardeners. It is easy to plan a garden in cool spring weather, but when the thermometer goes up energy goes down, and it takes real effort to carry on.

But the Home School Gardeners are becoming a real challenge to their elders.

The latest report on Children's Victory Gardens is most gratifying. Mrs. I. Tracy, of Adams road, made her rounds last week and reports the following:

Leonard Risch has made a record of 95% on his garden. He chose a lot that has been unused for some time, which means that the preparation of the ground alone, was no small effort. His garden includes most of the customary vegetables and he even has a few potato plants.

Tony Baldwin has 90% though he has been away and has not been able to do a lot of work on it.

Lois Tracy has 86% and is learning a great deal from her parents who are enthusiastic gardeners.

Barbara Carrier, with 88%, has a small garden but it is neat and well-planned.

Mrs. Walter Ross, of the Education Committee of the Garden Club, is doing her share of supervising besides her work in forming and guiding the summer playground supervisory plan. She visited the following gardens:

Charles Martz' garden gained a score of 95% with his excellent effort. He has made a careful plan and his vegetables are thriving.

Ruth Kadell, with 96%, is doing well at her initial effort.

Fred Phister is a particularly enthusiastic gardener and has 95% on his garden. He has put into use part of a vacant lot and hopes next year to have even more space. He has provided peas, beans and radishes for the family table.

To all Home School Gardeners: Let us have 100% on effort for July and August so that when school begins every gardener will be eligible for his Victory Garden Award. Keep up the good work!

Writes Own Story

Because Fred Phister has taken such an interest in the Victory Garden program the Committee asked him to write his own story about his garden.

The Report on My Garden

My brother deserves some of the credit for my victory garden. It all started like this.

About the middle of April my brother Jac turned over the soil in the lot next to our house. I went out and started also, but I didn't turn over the soil. We have a garden cultivator and I just took the sod right off the top of the ground with a four-pronged cultivator. Then I could start a mulch pile. Jac then decided he wanted his garden in another location, so I took over his old spot and began to enlarge it until it was 20 feet square. I also found out that if you took the sod right off the top of the ground instead of turning it over, it was a lot easier and you would not have as many weeds.

The next thing then was the seeds and plants. I talked with Miss Frances Looney, our biology teacher, about my garden and she helped me plan it. Miss Looney was starting tomato plants from seeds for other people who wanted gardens, so I said I would buy about 40 plants from her. Then I bought the rest of the seeds at one of the stores up town. Then I raked out the dried-out grass and leveled off the ground and I moistened the ground and put fertilizer on the ground.

I planted two rows of different varieties of radishes; three rows of two different varieties of carrots, one row of onions, one row of okra, three rows of giant peas, one and one-half rows of beets, and about 40 tomato plants.

We have certainly enjoyed the food we have had from the garden and have had everything except the okra and tomatoes. I transplanted part of a row of radishes, that I had thinned out of the first two rows and they were fairly good. Mother said they weren't so good.

I put ten pounds of fertilizer in my garden. The school supplied five pounds because they sent to the Dept. of Agriculture and they sent back what the soil for this part of the State needed.

This is my first experience with a vegetable garden and I have learned something.

These were my mistakes:

1. I planted the tomatoes too close together.

2. My first stakes for the tomato plants were not heavy enough and have to be replaced.

3. I should not have planted all my vegetables at one time.

4. I did not have the peas properly supported but they grew successfully.

There are occasions when I have neglected my garden, because of other things I have to do, but on the whole, while it has been work, it has been fun and I have enjoyed it.

Garden Planting Is Still Feasible

Contrary to popular opinion, the planting season is not over. Many crops—including beans, carrots, beets, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, endive, Chinese cabbage, peas, radishes, lettuce, spinach and sweet corn—planted now will grow so much faster that the harvest will not be relatively as late as was the seeding.

Beans, carrots and beets from summer sowings will be better flavored and more tender than the older vegetables which may be harvested late from early sown seeds. Sweet corn, too, is best when grown from late planting.

Some vegetables such as peas, early radishes, lettuce and spinach require cool weather. Very early kinds of these vegetables may be sown in July and August, and will mature in the autumn. Cauliflower and brussels sprouts are fall crops and seeds should be sown now so that plants may be transplanted later.

There are two salad crops which are at their best in the fall—endive and Chinese cabbage. Endive will produce crisp, curly leaves which will be bitter until frost comes, making the most delicious salad of the season. Chinese cabbage grown in the summer will sometimes run to seed, but in the short days of autumn it has beautiful, elongated heads of crisp leaves.

Vegetable crops including peas, early radishes, lettuce and spinach, require cool weather, and you may sow very early seeds in July and August, so they will mature in the autumn.

Sweet corn is a crop for late sowing and the finest corn is produced by late September.

Sacred Music Session At Waldenwoods Will Be Held July 20-30

Singers, choir directors, organists, song leaders, and ministers from several states and Canada will attend the 12th annual session of the School of Sacred Music at Waldenwoods, from July 20 to 30. Each year nationally known faculty members have been brought to Michigan for this unique school, specializing in choral and church music.

The school is sponsored by the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs and is approved by the Detroit Council of Churches. Dr. Nellie Beatrice Huger, founder and director of the school, is a voice teacher and head of the Sacred Music Department of the Detroit Institute of Art. She has been state chairman of church music for the past 14 years.

Waldenwoods, on Lake Walden, is located on M-23 near Brighton, Milford, Howell, and Fenton. Information regarding the school can be secured from the School of Sacred Music, 52 Putnam avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Professor: "I am going to speak on liars today. How many of you have read the twenty-fifth chapter of the text?"

Nearly every student raised his hand.

Professor: "Good! You are the very group to whom I wish to speak. There is no twenty-fifth chapter."

Like the cloud with the silver lining—

every dark lamp shade needs a WHITE LINING!
Like a thirsty sponge soaking up water, a dark lamp shade absorbs light. The light from the bulb is "hidden under a bushel" instead of being thrown into the room where it can do some good. One way to correct this fault—and still make use of the offending shade—is to fit the shade with a white lining. This reflects more light into the room and may increase the efficiency of your lamp as much as 50 per cent.
Another way to get all the light you pay for is to clean your bulbs and shades and fixtures frequently. Dust is insidious: It collects under shades, on reflector bowls, even inside enclosed glass fixtures, and cuts down the amount of light 10, 20, 30 per cent or more. Wipe off lamp bulbs, reflectors, etc., with a damp cloth, and dust your lamp shades inside and out.
Use the right size bulbs in your lamps and fixtures. Don't expect a small bulb to do a good lighting job when a larger bulb is needed. The light will be inadequate. Don't squeeze too big a bulb into a small lamp, either . . . the glaring light and harsh shadows are equally harmful. Try moving your lamps closer to the point of use, so that they shed their light more directly on your work.
White linings for shades are only one type of "light adaptor" equipment that makes it possible to modernize your lamps and fixtures easily and at low cost. There are many others in a variety of styles, all moderately priced . . . available at department stores, lighting fixture stores, and electrical dealers. (We do not sell this equipment.)
