are laying back on our hunk's complaining about having lamb today! (Seven tons arrived on the post last week.)

After a Year Editor, The Eccentric: Having completed a year's service, I thought you would be interested in the effects it had upon me.

I am still continuing my studies in radio school. I am at present in the last lesson—15 weeks per service. I hope to finish by July 19. There are going to be more...

Looking back over the past year, one thing stands out very important. That is the disappointment we received when they lengthened the time to 2 1/2 years! Also I will follow the custom of writing to the parents of the men she entertains, just to let them know that their sons are getting along okay.

Thanks for sending The Eccentric each week. I read my twin brother's article in one of your editions. He seemed to resent living in pig pens while the Japs live in barracks. I can't say that I blame him.

Most of the men in my battery had a year's service. But still we are making time. With some of our buddies fighting against great odds, we
