How to Boost Soldiers' Morale

People at home can bolster the morale of men in service by showing them that they care about their welfare. Dr. W. Glen Harris, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, told the Exchange Club Tuesday.

Letters and packages from home really mean a great deal, he said, basing his opinion on impressions received during a month spent in Army and Navy bases in Texas, talking with men of every rank, even in the guard houses.

Admitting that he knew nothing of military strategy, the speaker said the consensus was that the war would be long and that "many of today's big privates will be high leaders before it is over."

"The cream of our manhood is with the armed forces; they are the finest spirited men with whom I have ever had contact," he said. "The greatest sacrifice will be required of all, he concluded.
