

June Weddings Still in the Limelight in Birmingham Social Calendar

Jones-Germain Vows Exchanged Saturday Evening

For her marriage last Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, in the First Methodist Church, Esther B. Jones, who became the bride of Raymond E. Germain, was charming in a delicate white marquisette gown with a long train and a fine lace finger veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and was escorted by tiny baby breath blossoms. She is the daughter of Mrs. George Jones, of Merrill street.

Lillian Roper, of Detroit, who was maid of honor, wore a maitre marquisette and lace dress and as a bridesmaid, a flowered tulle with a shoulder-length veil to match her gown. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and blue delphiniums. The bridesmaids wore dresses fashioned on the same lines as the maid of honor's gown but in different colors—Mona Pfeife, of Detroit wore blue, while Lillian Bailey appeared in rose. Both wore matching shoulder-length veils held in place by a flowered tulle. Their bouquets were composed of soft pink carnations and very light blue bachelor buttons.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Germain, of Royal Oak, asked his brother, Maurice, to be his best man, Richard Landers, of Detroit, and Roy Stockwell, the bride's brother-in-law, seated the guests.

The bride's mother wore a blue sheer summer print dress with white accessories. Her corsage consisted of pale pink carnations and baby breath. Mrs. Germain wore white accessories to blend in with her printed silk ensemble of coral and white, with which she wore a corsage of pink carnations and baby breath.

In the parlors of the church immediately after the service, the reception took place, after which the young couple left for their wedding journey. For going away, the young Mrs. Germain was wearing a silk jersey dress of powder blue, white accessories and a corsage plucked from her wedding bouquet.

Barbara Backus, Guy Pitts Repeat Nuptial Promises

Before an altar decked with white peonies and delphinium and glowing tapers in tall candelabra, Barbara Jean Backus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Backus, of Vaughn road, repeated her nuptial vows Saturday evening to Guy Harvey Pitts, of Detroit, son of Mrs. G. H. Pitts, of Planted Post, N. Y. The wedding service was performed in St. James Episcopal church at 8:30 o'clock and was read by Rev. Warner L. Forsyth.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown with a close-fitting bodice, medium train, long, light sleeves, and a heart-shaped neckline. A coronet of orange blossoms held her illusion veil in place. She also wore a short face veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and orchids.

Nancy Backus acted as her sister's maid of honor. She chose a fraill marquisette gown of butterscotch yellow, with a square neckline, short puffed sleeves and a full, shirred skirt. A heart-shaped hat of yellow net with long net streamers completed her attire. She carried yellow daisies and deep purple pansies.

The four bridesmaids, Ella Stowe, of Richmond, Va.; Douglas Wetherbe, of Muskegon, Mich.; Margaret Ann Ayers, of Detroit, and Mrs. John Stevens, of Magnolia Park, were dressed exactly like the maid of honor but their flowers were shasta daisies and yellow pansies.

Elwin Morse, of Cleveland, O., acted as best man for Mr. Pitts, while J. Alfred Gross, Jr., of Grosse Pointe, John Stevens, of Grosse Pointe, and Fred Gould and Earl Cross, both of Detroit, seated the guests.

A light blue crepe dress trimmed with blue lace and a small flowered hat were chosen by the bride's mother for her daughter's wedding. She wore a corsage of white carnations, which she wore with matching hat and with which she wore an orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip through Northern Michigan, the young Mrs. Pitts chose a powder blue tailored gabardine suit with brown and white accessories and a brown and white hat. Upon their return the young couple will live on Six Mile Road in Detroit.

Out of town guests were, Mrs. H. J. Adler, of Painters Post, N. Y., Capt. and Mrs. Walter E. Powers and daughter, Mary, and son, Robert, of Macon, Ga., and the bride's two great-aunts, Miss Alice Day and Miss Rose Day, of Cincinnati, O.

N. Beyers-M. Affleck Engagement Told

Mrs. Ralph F. Khuen, of Valley View, recently announced the engagement of her daughter, Nancy Beyers, to Myron Hopkins Strong Affleck, Jr., of Portland, Me., son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Hopkins Strong Affleck, also of Portland.

Miss Beyers attends Rollins College and is a member of Kappa Alpha sorority. Mr. Affleck is a graduate of Amherst College, where he was affiliated with Psi Upsilon fraternity. The wedding is scheduled for fall.

M. Gail-M. Scanlon Nuptial Vows Read Saturday P. M.

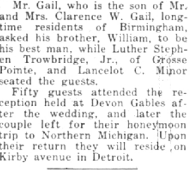

Against a background of fragrant white lilies and dainty white larkspur, Elizabeth Scanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Scanlon, of Detroit, became the bride of Maxwell Trowbridge Gail, at a late-afternoon candlelight service in St. James Episcopal church Saturday. The Rev. Warner L. Forsyth officiated at the ceremony.

Looking lovely in an aqua blue street-length dress, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a small hat fashioned of dainty-looking flowers and accessories of a deep peonina color. She wore lavender orchid corsage.

Mrs. Lancelot C. Minor, the bridegroom's sister, was Miss Scanlon's only attendant. She wore a dress of rose crepe with a heart-shaped long jacket of boucle, with a small rose hat. She was pinned with an orchid corsage.

Mr. Gail, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Gail, long of Detroit, was the groom. He asked his brother, William, to be his best man, while Luther Stephens, of Detroit, acted as best man. Mr. Gail is a member of the Grosse Pointe, and Lancelot C. Minor seated the guests.

The ceremony followed the reception held at Devon Gates after the wedding, and later the couple left for their honeymoon trip to Northern Michigan. Upon their return they will reside on Kirby avenue in Detroit.

Matice-Warehock Nuptials Repeated

At a small candlelight ceremony before an improvised altar banked with white carnations, sweetheart roses and dainty baby breath, Dana Matice and John Warehock, both of Detroit, repeated their nuptial vows to John Warehock, of Big Beaver. The service took place Saturday evening at 7 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents on Chapin avenue. Rev. Daniel Jorgensen officiated.

The bride wore a suit of chocolate brown complemented with a frilly white dicky. She wore a tiny white pill box hat with a short veil and white accessories. Her corsage was a large gardenia.

The maid of honor, Mrs. Boudner, of Birmingham, chose a dusty rose tailored suit with which she wore accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Clifford Brown, of Big Beaver, was Mr. Warehock's best man.

A navy blue light print frock was chosen by the bride's mother, with which she wore accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

The wedding breakfast took place immediately after the marriage at the DAC, Detroit, after which the Kinsell Jr.'s flew west for their wedding trip.

Mr. Kinsell was graduated from the University of Michigan this year and received his degree in architectural engineering. He was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The bride attended the University of Michigan and Michigan State College and is affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

How do bank checks provide safety?

Checks provide safety in at least two ways: (1) They eliminate the need of carrying cash and (2) They furnish valid receipts in the form of cancelled vouchers which prove that payment has been made to the designated person. Both of these features are entirely automatic yet the amount of money they have saved for people with checking accounts, if possible to calculate, would be enormous.
