

Memorial Day Parade Augmented By Civilian Units

A sweltering, sunny day following a severe rainstorm-attended Birmingham's biggest Memorial Day parade in recent years last Saturday. It was the warmest May 30 on record, so hot that two children collapsed after the trip.

An enthusiastic crowd watched all along the route of march and there was a large throng of on-lookers at Greenwood Cemetery, where memorial services were held.

The ranks of marchers were considerably increased this year by Civilian Defense units—air raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen, Red Cross Motor Corps, members of the American Women's Voluntary Service and members of a Pontiac Home Guard unit.

Leading the march were carried by the parade chairman, D. H. Thompson; the parade marshal, H. A. O'Day; a major in the First World War; and the speaker of the day, William C. Allen, member of the City Commission and a captain in the First World War.

The American Legion; Veterans of Foreign Wars; and their Auxiliaries; War Nurses; the Baldwin High School Band; a vacant car in memory of members of the GAR; a color guard; Army trucks, loaned by Yellow Cab; a float for the Boy Scouts; MOMS; the DAR—all stretched member of the city's history.

At the cemetery, the band played the national anthem, while everywhere people stood silently. Following the memorial prayer by the Rev. C. C. Becker, First Baptist Church, Rev. E. E. Mertz paid tribute to two Birmingham men, Thomas Giles, chief electrician's mate, and Robert Uhlman, an ensign, both in the Navy, who have already given their lives in this war. The mayor asked, "Let us not forget the names of these Birmingham boys who have so far died for their country."

Other Speakers

Various civic organizations through their representatives gave tributes to the dead. Speaking were Samuel H. Knowlton of the VFW; Russell H. Fisher, American Legion; Mrs. Fred Samuelson, VFW Auxiliary; Mrs. William DeGraff; Mrs. Wylie Poarsall, American Legion Auxiliary; and Bill Harper for the Boy Scouts.

World War Nurse Mrs. Leonard Cady placed a wreath on the Soldier's Monument, saying, "These flowers will wither but their spirit will last forever."

After the presentation Mr. Allen gave a brief talk, pointing out that the civilian's well-done duties at home add greatly to the strength and morale of the Army and emphasizing his point by a picture of his own First World War experience. GARDEN FOR VICTORY

CULTIVATION

The primary duty of the gardener from now until fall is to cultivate. As important as watering and insect control is the regular "spade" work that is done. There is some misunderstanding about the purpose of loosening the soil around plants. Since it is to keep the moisture in the soil and to encourage deep rooting, the oftener a deep the better. Certain bushes, as the currant, should be cultivated to a depth of six inches—especially the first of the year, to help the plant make deeper roots.

Another reason to cultivate is to keep down weeds and to avoid the larvae of injurious insects developing near the plants. This applies in the rose garden as well as to the vegetable garden. For regular routine cultivation, do not go too deep but keep the surface soil loose so it will act as a mulch. But whatever you prefer to use, hoe, cultivator or something else, keep at it.

THIN 'EM OUT

Most vegetables should be thinned out, for better growth, and it's wise to do this in the early stages of their life. If they are not thinned before they have attained some size the growth of those that remain will be checked, even if you do get around to thinning a little later on.

Carrots and beets are exceptions and may be thinned when they are large enough to use. High legumes will never develop properly if crowded. A foot and a half or two feet should be given each plant for best results. Bush beans, green pod and wax, should have three to four inches. Pods should be thinned so they will have plenty of room to grow.

Radishes and beets are usually thinned by using hoes. Beet tops with the tap roots just beginning to form are a highly nutritive delicacy.

Leaf lettuce should be thinned when growth begins to about one inch between plants. When the lettuce starts to develop, bush beans, green pod and wax, should have three to four inches. Pods should be thinned so they will have plenty of room to grow.

NEW WARTIME SCHEDULES

The transportation needs of America have made it necessary to change Greyhound Intercity schedules. This new service has been arranged in full cooperation with the wartime program of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Today the important thing to make every bus work full time—keeping vital traffic on the move. To achieve this purpose, Greyhound is introducing many changes—diverting buses to more essential routes—reducing driving speeds—eliminating Expresses and Limiteds and many "second sections"—utilizing service with other bus companies in some conserving tires and vital materials in every schedule.

Be sure to ask about the new schedules before you take a trip. We hope you will not be inconvenienced, crowded or delayed. But if you are, please be lenient—this was an effort comes first with Greyhound as it does with you.

*These schedules changes affect Greyhound Intercity Service, not Greyhound Suburban Service in 150 Detroit Metropolitan area.

Why are there charges on some checking accounts?

It is a banking fundamental that each account should pay its own way. When the activity of an account (checks drawn and deposits made) raises the cost of handling above the earnings of the free balance (the portion available for investment), it becomes necessary to make a charge for the service. We will gladly compute the free balance needed to carry your normal checking activity without a service charge.
