Quarterback Club Hears Sports Plan

The creation of a new athletic board of control, and more and livelier interest in the junior high school sports program that would eventually help the senior high school were proposed by Dr. Herman L. Shibler Monday night at the Community House at a meeting of the Sideline Quarterbacks.

The Sideline Quarterbacks, a parent group, agreed to take a more definite interest in the athletic activities of the Birmingham schools.

J. M. Armstrong, first president and founder of the Quarterbacks, recently resigned but was voted to the Sideline Quarterback's board of directors as an all-time member. The Quarterbacks will elect new officers at their next meeting.

Guests at the meeting were Dr. Shibler, Ray H. Bechtold, principal of Baldwin High School; Ernest Engel and George Wurster, coaches; H. Ross Mack and J. H. Rosso, members of the board of education.

EXPERT

Russian fleet was bombed without warning by the Japs, and the next day the attackers declared war against Russia. "Does that remind you of anything?" asked Dr. Johnstone. But even then, America didn't believe her little Pacific protege was treacherous. But when they went on to beat the Cossacks, the American public finally woke up and turned against them. Then came the immigration agitation in San Francisco in 1905, 1906 and 1907.

Underestimated Since 1908

"In 1908 Japan signed the 'Gentlemen's Agreement.' The American people believed that Japan was bluffing then and they weren't strong. Thus, our underestimation of the Japs dates from 1908 to now," said the speaker.

Dr. Johnstone showed how we ignored the warnings of our Army and Navy in 1914 when Japan gained control of German-controlled islands in the Pacific. It was from these same islands that Japanese planes took off for Pearl Harbor.

The speaker continued the enumeration of American thwartings of Japanese plans. He said that in 1918, America prevented Japan from getting control of Siberia. Then in 1921, under the leadership of Secretary Hughes, the Washington Peace Conference was held. This provided the longest peace between the two countries since 1905, peaceful relations lasting for 10 years. But again, the U. S. forced the Japanese to accept what they did not want, namely the naval treaty with us and adherence to our idea of treating all nations on a par.

"Remember," said Dr. Johnstone, "the Japs accepted our provisions but they did not forget that they had been thwarted time and time again by America. They had felt for a good many years that we were 'kicking them around' and they wanted revenge."

Illusion in the '20s

Dr. Johnstone declared that in the '20s we developed two illusions about the "little yellow men." First, we thought that Japan had become a democracy. She seemed to be very democratic externally, but Japanese medieval ideas still prevailed and flourished in their home life and in their manner of thinking.

The second erroneous opinion was that there was a conflict between civilians and militarists and that the liberals had the upper-hand. This was exactly what the Japs wanted us to believe, when in reality, the liberals had longsince been overcome by the militarists, who were planning war campaigns against all countries in the continent of Asia.

In 1924, the immigration law directed explicitly against the Japanese was passed. This was "the straw that broke the camel's back."

Then in 1929 and 1930 when Japan was campaigning in Manchuria, their actions were ignored for a long period of time by the U. S. and other nations. But when it became evident that America was going to try to halt this onslaught in China, Japan, who always recognized Uncle Sam as her biggest foe, decided to strike quickly and without warning. So, allied with the Germans, of whom there are at least 3,000 now in Tokyo, many being war-trained technicians, Japan planned a series of blows against us before we were wholly prepared.

Germany Helps Japan

"Contrary to American belief," declared Johnstone, "there is a definite collaboration between Japan and Germany under the very much-alive Axis Alliance."

Dr. Johnstone told of the 3,000-mile Japanese lifeline between Tokyo and Singapore which must be kept open if Japan is to continue her operations successfully. At the same time they must attack as well as defend. They must try to keep our forces scattered, thus the great distance between their points of attack so far.

"If we are to push the Japs out of Asia, we must get large armies to their homeland, therefore we must count on 3,000,000 men in China and we must keep them on our side," emphatically stated Dean Johnstone.

"This war will not be easy nor will it be of short duration," said Dr. Johnstone, "but if we can prevent the Axis powers from getting what they want this year, 1942, then I think that we can and will win this war!"

Commission Hits Taxation of Bonds

The City Commission adopted a resolution Monday night condemning the taxation of municipal bonds, a step which is under consideration by the Treasury Department. If taxation of municipal securities is necessary, the method should be a constitutional amendment, the resolution declared.

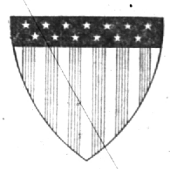
can be Patriotic, too . . .



PROBABLY at some time or other you have phoned The Detroit Edison Company for trouble service—when a fuse burned out or your electric iron required a new heating unit or some minor appliance needed repair. On more than 90 per cent of these calls, a Detroit Edison serviceman arrives at the customer's house within the hour. Promptness on trouble calls is important: Customers often comment favorably on the speed of our service.

Now our Nation is at war. Rubber tires and other critical materials are being rationed. Some of our experienced men in various departments—including repair and delivery—are leaving for the armed forces. One way we are trying to meet the situation is by routing customer calls . . . that is, by grouping all the calls in a certain area so that ONE serviceman can handle these in a single trip. This saves cars, tires, man-hours, gasoline—although you may have to wait a little longer for the Edison serviceman to arrive. It will help, too—when you exchange burned-out lamp bulbs—if you will bring in your old lamps to the nearest Detroit Edison office, and carry the new lamps home with you.
