Miss Wragby Is Lovely In Heavy White Satin

Evelyn Elizabeth Wragby was lovely bride in her gown of heavy white satin when she spoke her vows to Charles Albert Eddy, Saturday afternoon in the St. James Episcopal Church. Her dress was fashioned with a tight-fitted bodice accented by a square neckline delicately embroidered with tiny seed pearls. The sleeves were fitted below the elbow falling in a point over the wrist, and the full skirt ended in a sweeping train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held secure by a crown of pleated tulle ruching, and she carried orchids surrounded by shattered carnations.

Evelyn was attended by a former college classmate, Virginia Bellows, of Evanston, Ill. Virginia wore a dress with a long torso bodice of deep aquamarine velvet and a rustling skirt of aqua tulle. Ostrich tips of the same made as the skirt, caught with clusters of deep aquamarine velvet were secured to her hair. She carried a graceful arrangement of American Beauty roses.

Robert Ackerman, of Westfield, N. J., was Mr. Eddy's best man, and seating the guests were Richard Confort, of Cleveland, O.; Paul Wendland and Lorne Meisel, both of Bay City, and the bride's brother, Ray Wragby.

Miss Wragby is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur William Wragby, of Henley drive, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Eddy of Bay City.

Mrs. Wragby attended the ceremony in a tulle dress trimmed in gold and silver lame with which she wore a matching hat and a purple orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue crepe dress and a similar corsage of orchids.

Reception At Golf Club

After the nuptial service there was a reception at the Birmingham Golf Club. The room was decorated with white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The couple took their honeymoon trip to Chicago, and when they left the bride wore a white suit of moss green with dark velveteen trim and matching accessories, a mink coat and hat. Mr. and Mrs. Eddy will make their home in South Bend, Ind.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Rice, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Lt. and Mrs. Richard Brown, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Fellows, of Evanston, Ill.; and Mrs. Sydney Paul of Huntington, W. Va.

Olive D. Hormel To Lecture Nov. 18

"Books as Ammunition: A Book-Month Survey" will be the subject of the second lecture in the new fiction, biography, and history series on Books and Social Victory by Olive D. Hormel. The lectures are sponsored by the Birmingham Group of University of Michigan Alumnae.

Miss Hormel will give special attention to holiday possibilities and to books of morale, inspiration, and good cheer as presented in the new fiction, biography, and history, and in "handbooks for the home front," such as "Letter Men for Less Money," "How to Cook a Wolf," and "Stretching Your Dollar in Wartime."

She will also discuss three recent books about Washington: "I Write from Washington," by Marjorie Chiles, "Diary of a Washington Correspondent" by David Lawrence, and "The Ribble of Bendinor," all considered against the background of Kipling's "Washington Is Like That."

Enrollment may still be made for the seven remaining lectures in the series.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 16

KINGSWOOD KLIPPINGS

The seniors are working hard on the final week of preparation for their play, "A Madsummer Night's Dream," which will be given the weekend after Thanksgiving.

And speaking of Thanksgiving, the boarders are looking forward to their free weekend which begins tomorrow night, the last before gas rationing begins. It is especially welcome as we have given up the long Thanksgiving weekend holiday and will have the bright cold days warm that the rocky season is nearly over. We have one more game, and then comes the hockey tournament and the choice of the best players from all the member schools. And of course, there will be the game between the Blue and Gold teams; may the best team win! It all counts up toward the final award of the banner to the winning team in June.

There has been great activity in the weaving room lately, and many beautiful things are being set up on the looms. Eleanor Laramie is weaving a green rug and Lillian Hawkins a linen luncheon set. However, the most popular thing seems to be material for suits. Sally Ann Enghart is working on a fine striped herringbone pattern. Peggy Zedler on a gay plaid, and Saine Thornton on a plaid, too. Other girls weaving suit materials are Barbara Scott, Mary Lou Stiffler, Sue Shovan, Virginia McCullough, Vera Brethen, Peggy Lind and Kitty Wallace. We are anxious to see the finished products.

Furnish Day Rooms

At present, the main undertaking of the Camp and Hospital Service is to furnish day rooms. These rooms are close to the barracks and mess hall of each company, and are set apart from the fact that they are used for recreation chiefly during the short periods of the day when the barracks are available at camp, or the U.S.O. buildings outside gates are available at such times, often in camp being frequently at least 100 miles from the U.S.O. being "out of bounds."

At present there are two such councils functioning in Michigan. The first was organized last year at Pearl Harbor, was the Fort Custer Camp and Hospital Service. It covers all the navy, Coast Guard, military and air establishments in western Michigan. Its chairman is Henry S. Booth, president of the Oakland Citizens League.

Mr. Booth can furnish our military and naval posts being enlarged, there are many men and women in service, who need the relaxation afforded by comfortably furnished day rooms. What are otherwise barren, unattractive and comfortable places for recreation become cheery places in camp when supplied with good furniture, proper food and other amenities. The contribution the Birmingham Village Players are making to the cause of the soldier by a thoroughly entertaining program will undoubtedly check one more room out of our list of 40 or so rooms still to be equipped.

The Cast

"Popsahellin" is a musical revue written, produced, and acted entirely by the Village Players. Written and directed by Ward Tolkein and Frank McGinnis, it includes the following cast: Stanley Saunders, Linon Hart, L. E. Colgrove, Ward Tolkein, George Fox, Mrs. John P. St. Clair, Mrs. Hans Schoplin, Joan Baker, Mrs. Inez Asper, James Ballock, Mrs. Elliot S. Kinney, Mrs. Donald S. Bell, Mrs. William L. Martin, Mrs. J. W. Bampton, Mrs. Donald T. Stanton, W. S. Sumner, Jr., Mrs. S. M. W. Turner, Mrs. Richard DeBeaujean, Mrs. George T. Stevens and Mrs. Harold E. Middleton.

Speaking for the Village Players organization, W. Laurence Shaffner, president, said of the coming performance: "All of the members are delighted for the opportunity to present this play to the people in our community, and to have the proceeds used to furnish a recreational day room at Fort Custer. We hope and feel sure that those who purchase tickets and attend our performance will be well satisfied in two ways; first, an enjoyable evening's entertainment at the Playhouse, and second, the satisfaction that the money they spent will go to benefit such a good cause."
