

Offer State Lands To First Buyers

Lansing. — Revised, up-to-date lists of state lands available for immediate purchase in the 32 counties of northern Lower Michigan may now be obtained for a small fee for each county list, from the conservation department's lands division.

From 40 to 3,000 acres and from a few to 1,500 pieces of platted property are described in each of the lists which are compiled separately, by counties. Lands available are those which have come into state ownership through tax delinquency, and have been classified, because of agricultural or recreational value, as best suited for return to private ownership.

Buying of the listed lands involves a minimum of "two steps." The first person sending in a money order covering the full price and description of a specific piece of property described in any of the lists becomes the new owner of that parcel as soon as the new title can be written. Purchasers are sure of a clear title, but they do not get the mineral rights.

Recipes for Your Books, Cooks!

Remember how you used to go tramping off to school, a tin dinner pail swinging from your hand, as you trudged the mile or more of rough clay road that led to the one-room school house? How all morning long, as you squirmed at your desk and plodded through McGuffey's "Reader," you savored the delights in that old tin pail tucked away back under your seat.

Inside that tightly lidded can were crusty slabs of home-made bread spread lavishly with fresh churned butter—a salty slice of country ham—a jar of beans or a hard boiled egg—an apple—a Friedcake—a piece of pie—or may be a slice of chocolate cake. And right on the top of that old tin pail there was, inevitably, a pickle. A sharp, tart pickle... a pungent pickle... that, mingled with the hearty smell of cheddar cheese still takes us back in memory to the days of dinner pails, and pinafires, and count'f fives in spring.

A good pickle is the perfect partner to a packed sandwich. It's cool and crunchy when you bite clear through. And the tart, spicy vinegar in which the pickle has been steeped adds piquancy and moisture that keeps a sandwich fresh till lunch time.

Recommended as lunch box favorites are these recipes for sandwich fillings.

India Relish and Liverwurst Sandwich Filling

Combine, blending well—
 1/2 pound liverwurst
 1/4 cup India relish
 1/4 cup mayonnaise.
 Makes 1 cup.

Sandwich Spread and Egg Sandwich

For each sandwich, spread—
 2 slices bread, 1/4 inch thick with—
 Sandwich spread.
 Slice and arrange on one piece of bread—
 1 hard-cooked egg.
 Sprinkle egg with—
 Salt
 Pepper.

Top with second slice of bread, sandwich spread down, pressing gently, so sandwich spread and egg hold together. Cut in halves and wrap with preserved sweet shrikens.

Peanut Butter and Mustard Pickle Sandwich Filling

Measure equal amounts—
 Peanut butter
 Sweet mustard pickle
 Chopped pickle finely. Combine the two and keep in cool place. Excellent for cold sandwiches or between hot toast.

Pickle and Cheese Spread
 Mash with fork—
 1/2 pound sharp cheese.
 Add—
 1/2 cup chopped fresh cucumber pickle, well drained.
 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.
 1 tablespoon tomato ketchup.

Blend thoroughly. Makes a delicious spread for packed sandwiches.

Turpentine In the War

Gum forms in southern states on producing valuable crops. A variety of uses. A turpentine worker is shown "chipping" a tree for a fresh run of gum. The average worker can perform this operation as many as 18,000 times daily. Pine trees also furnish synthetic camphor which was formerly secured from Fur-
