One-man rubber life rafts are standard equipment on all Navy transport fighter planes. The raft is packed and stowed below the turtle deck immediately behind the pilot's seat. In top photo, pilot turns valve on container of carbon dioxide which will inflate life raft in one minute. Getting on the life raft, center photo, is a tricky operation. Pilot must get the light out in bottom photo, on his way to safety and another crack at the enemy.

Have You Met . . .

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Schaefer who are living at 261 Westwood avenue? Mr. Schaefer is an engineer with General Motors in Detroit, and moved up from Rockford, Ill. They took a home out here because they like the country and think Birmingham will be a nice place for their two children, Susan, who is 7, attends Quorton, and Stewart is 4.

The R. H. Halls who recently moved to Birmingham from Detroit? They'd always lived around the 2nd or seven mile road in the city, and decided to come out here when they were looking for a permanent home. The Halls have many friends in Birmingham, and they also thought it would be an ideal spot in which to bring up their two children, Richard, who is 5, and Aletta Quorton, and Christian. Mr. Halls is with sales force of the Alcobury-Ludlum Steel Company in Ferndale.

Council Says 'Don't Store Gasoline'

The National Safety Council today suggested a safe rate for storing gasoline—don't do it!

Hearing of gasoline not only is unproprietary, but extremely dangerous, said the Council. "The motorist who tries to heat rationing by laying in a supply of gas literally is storing up danger and trouble for himself."

While the storing and handling of gasoline can be perfectly safe when done by experts, the average person would be just as safe with a supply of TNT in his home.

No matter how careful the average person may be in storing gasoline, there is a definite danger that its vapor will escape. This vapor is highly explosive, and a chance spark or flame may set off an explosion that can wreck a house and cause death or injury.

"Furthermore, no matter where you live, the chances are that your fire insurance is automatically void if you have more than a very small quantity of gasoline on hand." And even that must be stored in an approved safety container.

"You may get an extra rale by heating gas, but the chances are it will be to the hospital."

"There is only one safe rule for handling gasoline—'Don't do it!'"

Harry F. Kelly has made his position clear on three more important issues:

ON EFFICIENCY:
"If I am elected Governor, I shall see that no unnecessary manpower is wasted in government while Michigan pleads for manpower in industry and on farms during these critical days."

ON SMALL BUSINESS:
"I shall seek to remove the yoke gradually crushing small business, by eliminating the needless State governmental interferences now imposed upon it. I shall enlist the good judgment of small business representatives in the administration of State affairs."

ON GOVERNMENT:
"I contend that the Governor owes a very definite duty to every political subdivision of his State; that every one of Michigan's 85 counties deserves from its Governor an awareness of its individual problems and a willingness to help in their successful solution."
