Guild Sets Oct. 27 Date for Annual Ingathering Tea

In the following official proclamation, Mayor John E. Martz has proclaimed tomorrow as official Needlework Guild Day for Birmingham.

In compliance with the request of Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner that all citizens of the state acquaint themselves with the history and service of the Needlework Guild of America and cooperate with the guild in furthering its splendid work, I hereby declare Friday, Oct. 9, as Needlework Guild Day in this city.

On Friday members of the Birmingham—Bloomfield Hills Branch will be stationed throughout the city during the day and evening to answer all questions and to receive names for membership. Membership consists of a gift of two new articles of clothing on a donation of money.

This is the only national charity collecting new clothing and household linen and distributing them through established institutions, such as the local welfare agency, Visiting Nurses Association and the Birmingham Community House.

The Needlework Guild of America is affiliated with the American Red Cross and it helps in times of national calamities, in "home defense" and its gifts of clothing for families of men in the service have been greatly appreciated by the Red Cross.

Let all of our citizens do their part in caring for their neighbors in need.

MAYOR JOHN E. MARTZ Guild workers will give out information and enlist membership all day tomorrow in the following stores: Mulholland, Davidson, Kragson, Woodworth, Chester Shop, and the lobby of the Wabek Building.

The climax of all this activity will come on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 27, when the Guild holds its annual Ingathering tea at the Community House. At this time all members attend the tea and also have an opportunity to inspect the articles already offered in for the Guild. All gifts should be new, and should come in pairs. Miss Hormel's Lecture Series Will Help Listeners Interpret War News

The first lecture in the monthly series of eight on "Books and Tactful Victory," to be sponsored here by Birmingham Alumnae of the University of Michigan, has been specifically designed to meet the need expressed by most people for a authentic background for events of today, according to Olive Deane Hormel, the lecturer. The series, now in its fifth year, is a feature of the University of Michigan noncredit program of extension work.

In this talk, titled "Basic Books for Background," to be given at 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 21, at the Baldwin Public Library, Miss Hormel will present books furnishing perspective on today's headlines. Among the books to be discussed are "Prelude to Victory" by James B. Reston, "Washington is Like That" by W. M. Lindsay, "The Crisis of Our Age" by P. A. Sorokin, "The Making of Tomorrow" by R. D. Scales, and "How War Came" by Forrest Davis and Ernest K. Lindley, subtitled "An American White Paper from the Fall of France to Pearl Harbor and Just After the Press."

This lecture, like the three which follow it, is concerned with problems and ideas, while the last four deal with people and places.

Since November 20, nationally known as "Book Month," Miss Hormel's second lecture, "Books as Ammunition," will be in the nature of a "Book-Month" survey. Books of special interest from a holiday standpoint will be emphasized, such as the new "A Time for Greatness" by Herbert Agar and "The Raft" by Robert Trumbull, or "They Were Expendable" by W. L. White.

The December lecture, appropriately titled Peace on Earth and Goodwill to Men, will present outstanding works on post-war plans for permanent peace. The lecture in January will discuss the most important new books on the probabilities in national and world economies under the terms of a New Leaf—Post-War Plans for Economic Security.

Miss Hormel will bring with her the books discussed and listed, and will be best man for Lt. Watt.
