YOUR MEN

(Continued from Page One) letter, writing, Chaplains agree: "Boys in most respects are very busy; often they don't write regularly because they say to themselves: 'Oh, OK, and no news is good news, and, besides, the folks know that I'm getting hot. Folks worry about my back home should never stop their own letter writing, for a letter from home that's bright and up in the average soldier's day.'"

Col. Chaplain Frank M. Thompson, level commander and chief of that branch at big Fort Benning, has been in the U. S. Army for 25 years. He has gained a broad viewpoint of men during those years; and he has about the faintest idea of the word of the American soldier. Fort Benning has 40 Chaplains, and 14 Captains.

"We Chaplains are really coming into our own in this war," he says. "Ranking by rank, I'm beginning to comprehend the values found in the development of the man who serves his country in the Army or the Navy. He finds his entire life changed, for the soldier's and sailor's day contains him becomes, in a real sense, his mother, father, and brother. The soldier's day is generally soberer than a man's life closer to the mystery of life, and that is why the soldier's day is so full of joy, and joy is so full of nature, which includes God."
