Currently being tested for military application, this nylon screening has all the advantages of metal screening and some special ones of its own. No painting is required since any color can be "ingrained" in the nylon as it is being spun. It is also resistant to rust and corrosion.

Uses Hypo Needle to Oil Gyroscope

LUBRICATION WITH A HYPODERMIC NEEDLE. Iren Golden, employed in our gyroscope room at Post Air Force, uses a hypodermic needle to oil the bearing of each side of the bearing in all that is required. Two drops would prevent efficient operation. Gyro being worked on and another under a dust-proof cellophane cap have been "whipped out" to conform with military regulations concerning this extremely restricted piece of equipment. You can get an idea of the size of this little giant, however.

RIGHT TRAINING

The Navy's air commander in the South Pacific is giving the basic credit to Naval Aviation's system of training carrier pilots and air crews for the continuing series of Naval air victories which began within two months after Pearl Harbor and has been featured by triumphs won in the Coral Sea, at Midway, Guadalcanal, and during the current offensive.

The training program drew its combat pilot training, the (First) Operational-trained Navy and Marine Corps pilots arriving this area are demonstrating a high order of ability as combat pilots.

By 'Generations'

Under the Navy's system of combat pilot training, the "first generation" pilots, then takes a course for teaching the next "generation" which in turn goes to the front and returns to train the following "generation", etc. The present "generation" in the field was trained by the combat crews of 1941 and 1942—men like Lieutenant Commander John S. (Jimmy) Thach, U. S. N.—and in now fighting from carrier decks and from bases in the present South Pacific.

SENATOR TRUMAN'S INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

INGENIOUS FELLOWS

It is a widely known fact that American boys enjoy the best health protection obtainable. New proofs of the effect of flight on the human body are coming in. One of the most recent ailments discovered by Army dentists is "flat-tire teeth." The condition is caused by metal filings which cause trouble at extremely high altitudes. The filled teethache and in many ways distress these unfortunate airmen. The malady appears normal when the pilot descends to a lower altitude, or the ground, which makes it difficult, even with the aid of X-rays, for the pilots to tell the dentists which teeth are bothering them when the culprits are discovered, however, the metal filings are removed and a medication in the form of a fluoride is used for two weeks, followed by the installation of a heavy non-conductive cement base in a new metal filling.

2nd Lieutenant Reveals His Joy

There is not a lad of roses for the second lieutenant, reveals Ward C. (Frank) Rankin, 417 Merrill street, in this letter from Camp Atterbury, Ind. He writes: "I was so full of joy to call my first furlough home, and had had my eyes open when your call came. I've just been thinking how much over this year's birthday is compared to last year's. This time last year I was a bank clerk in private sitting at a bank typewriter. I was in a uniform, sitting in a bank of Detroit, surrounded with a mob of Detroiters who were not my friends. I was in a bank of Detroit, surrounded with a mob of Detroiters who were not my friends. I was in a bank of Detroit, surrounded with a mob of Detroiters who were not my friends."

Arrest 3 Boys For Stench Rank

Three Birmingham youths were arrested last week for depositing stench fluid in Wilson and Shaha's drug stores as a prank.

They were questioned in the Prosecutor's office at Pontiac and for a time there was a possibility that they might have been prosecuted under a State law which imposes a minimum penalty of five years in prison. However, because of lack of malicious intent, they were held on a City ordinance, to which they pleaded guilty Saturday in Justice Forbes S. Hascall's court. One was fined $25; the other two, $15.

Because of their ages and the fact that they appeared at the Eccentric office and convinced the editors would be worth the publicity, their names are withheld.

Porcupine Friendly To Tower Watcher

Towerman Cventros reports that every day when he climbs to the tower ladder or by the angle iron, he merely throws water at it, and it obediently scampers down the pole out of the way.

For the rest of the day, the friendly animal proceeds to make itself at home, sleeping in the sun on the platform or angle iron. For amusement, it sits and knocks its feet about the angle iron hour after hour.

When the towerman wants to climb the angle iron, he merely throws water at it, and it obediently scampers down the pole out of the way.
