

Presbyterians Announce Plans for New Church Edifice After War

Remember, folks, all these restrictions upon your personal liberty and comfort are born of the war emergency; when the war is over these restrictions should vanish—this war is being fought quickly. But many of these restrictions, Wills, Jr., remain, you, and you, and you, Sir and Madame, demand their recognition.

Presbyterians Lay Plans for Church Edifice

Will Raise Funds For New Building After War's End

Birmingham's First Presbyterian congregation will build a new church after the war, it was decided Tuesday night in a general meeting of the members held at the home of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. B. Spivey.

By New Manse

Another move regarding the church property was ratified Tuesday night. It was decided to purchase the house of Mrs. Wilson C. Bell, 1617 Piquette, for use as the manse. The present pastor's home, a cement block structure at 319 Central, how to build a new church school, was built in 1909 at a cost of $5,000.

Big Moment Arrives

Now it seemed that the moment had arrived. The members, 1,225 and the church edifice, which took so long to build, were now ready for dedication. The auditorium seats 290 people with adjoining space gives accommodation for 400 more.
