Importation of Cheap Negro Labor Fixes Part of Responsibility for Riots, Writer Says, Recalling Races in 1833

By GENE ALLEMAN (Michigan Press Association)

If Detroit's chickens are just coming home to roost, they sure took their sweet time. Just 110 years ago, this very month, a company of federal troops was dispatched from Fort Gratiot (Port Huron) to Detroit for the express purpose of suppressing an insurrection of Negroes.

Good citizens of Detroit, like those of San Francisco after the "big fire" were inclined to minimize the disturbance by calling it "The Negro riot." But it was a riot-ripping, lusty affair in which the Negroes stormed the jail, paid the sheriff to let them out and otherwise had the white people in a dither.

Removes Them, Too And like the 1943 rumors that whites had killed three Negroes in the "Negro riot," the rioters in 1833 grew into "business" men at a standstill. Women dared not venture out of doors. Merchants put up their shutters, shoving the bolts into place, and closed their doors. "Who said history doesn't repeat itself?" it is said in Detroit.

In those pre-civilized days, Detroit was the capital of the Territory of Michigan. The frontierer peninsula had not yet attained the stature of statehood which came in 1837.

When Congress enacted the Ordinance of 1787, creating the Territory of Michigan, the region between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and the Great Lakes, the federal lawmakers inserted this significant provision: "There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the said territory, otherwise than in the punishment of crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted."

General Lewis Cass was appointed governor of the Territory of Michigan following the War of 1812, and when the Negro insurrection broke out in 1833, he was in Detroit.

POINTS MONEY TIME

WHEN you do your marketing these days, you can assist greatly in saving both time and money if you do two things: be familiar with the definite ration coupon points for the various foods you wish to buy; and have your ration coupon points with you, and do not detach them except in the presence of the clerk who is waiting on you.

You know, of course, that the OPA requests that you do not detach the coupons—that this measure is taken only as a protection for you and the entire nation against black market operations.

And, of course, the birth of the Republican party itself at Jackson on July 18, 1825, was a part of this anti-slavery sentiment in Michigan which invited Negroes of the South to seek a haven here.

Import Cheap Labor

Whenever industry is confronted with a shortage of workers, the big question has been to import cheap labor from elsewhere. The Southern plantation owners imported slaves from the West Indies.

When the first World War created a labor shortage in Michigan, industrialists encouraged a notable migration of Negroes from the South to seek a haven here.

Today, the Mexicans and Jamaicans are "summering" in Michigan by the same economic reason.

Where the Negro population has grown by the first year of the World War to about 25,000 in Detroit alone, and by 1930 it had reached 60,000. In 1939 it was 169,000. Today the Negro population is estimated to be close to a quarter of a million and it is still mounting.

Perhaps it is a bit trite, after reviewing a century's history of how Negroes have been encouraged to migrate to Michigan, to make a simile to Detroit and the Negroes are coming home to roost."

The Negro is here because, historically at least, we invited him to Detroit and other factory centers. Today, the Mexicans and Jamaicans are "summering" in Michigan by the same economic reason.
