

Fats Collection Even More Vital

"By Birmingham Bee"
Michigan, which is seventh state in population, is fourth in silk and nylon hose collection. It is second in the collection of fats but even so we have given only 51.3% of our quota. Glycerine has been taken away from all possible sources and this has helped tremendously, but the vast needs of the war cannot be met unless housewives give their quota of at least a tablespoon of fat a day.

It is thrifty to use what you need of your kitchen fats, but you not also spare a tablespoon full day for the government? To separate the fat and get the most out of your greasy pans, just pour a little hot water into it, swirl it around so the fat is loosened, and then when the fat rises to the top and solidifies, it is easy to lift the fat off and drop it into your household fats tin. It doesn't matter how many types of fat you put into one container.

Here is some new information on tin salvage: The need is so great for the tin that you are now asked to take the extra trouble to open and wash lunch flat tin cans, condensed and evaporated milk cans. The old-fashioned lever-type can opener will do the job, and the family job with them, but it really isn't funny. All these things are needed so badly and we have them to give. It is our "sacred trust," in a manner of speaking. Don't let them be sent to our country for use in winning the war.

On Jan. 1, 1942, there were 25 million A ration books for season use in the hands of consumers, 6,400,000 of the B books, and 3,600,000 C books.

Urges Tire Repairs To Keep Them Safe

The element of human life has entered the car conservation picture, according to Harold B. Kuder, local administrator of war transportation.

Time has produced another vital incentive for doing everything you can to keep your tires in good condition. Mr. Kuder said: "Up to now, our goal has been to make our tires last until more are available. The advent of spring, however, has focused attention on another aspect of the situation—the safety aspect. Only a few days ago, a Michigan boy lost his life in an accident which resulted from a tire blow-out. Such accidents are not uncommon in peacetime when tires are plentiful. Now, when most tires are becoming thin, the hazard is aggravated and it will grow worse as time goes on.

To guard against accidents, Mr. Kuder urges that tires be replaced as soon as the need becomes apparent and that repairs not be delayed. He calls attention, also to the fact that wet weather increases the necessity of attention.

Former Kiska Man Wants Japs Chased

There is one Bluejacket who is particularly anxious to throw the Japs out of Kiska—he is Henry Winkley, a retired chief boat's mate in the U. S. Navy, who leased Kiska Island for $24 a year from the government back in 1942. The Navy man made a livable camp for himself on the island and started raising blue foxes. For 15 years, until 1939, when the government cut off all civilian concessions, he turned out pelts and fur coats on the 12-mile strip of nearly barren land. Now that the Japs have temporarily taken over the island, he wants to help chase the Japs and see to it that his foxes are alive and healthy.

ASK MORE EGGS

Oakland County poultrymen are asked by the government to produce approximately 2,145,000 dozen eggs this year, 3.4 per cent more than in 1942, as their share in the Food for Victory program, the National Poultry Defense Committee estimated today.

Germinating Hard Shelled Seeds

By Paul R. Krone, Chief, Victory Garden Section, Michigan Office of Civilian Defense.

Some hard shelled seeds that are slow in germinating will start into growth more rapidly if they are soaked before planting. Many gardeners soak such seeds as beans, peas, squash and melons in lukewarm water until the seed coat is softened. They should not be soaked to long or they will rot. Seed that is to be sown directly outdoors should not be soaked unless the outside temperature is sufficiently high for the seed to germinate right away.

When sowing seeds out of doors, be careful not to sow most things too deeply. Very fine seeds should just be pressed into the soil. Other seeds should be planted from one-quarter to one-half inch deep, depending on the size of the seed, which are planted one to two inches deep. Some gardeners prefer to plant their seeds in trenches four to five inches deep, covering them with only an inch soil at the top. This is especially as the plants grow. The reason, of course, is to get the roots deep in the moist soil in an effort to prolong the crop.

Don't sow seed too thick; it may be most easy to thin out. Very fine seed can be distributed more thinly by mixing some dry soil or sand with the seed.

The soil should always be firmed after covering, to bring it in close contact with the seeds. Sowings made after the spring rains are over are often benefited by covering with a mixture of half sand and half peat to hold the moisture. This is not necessary in early spring plantings, as very beneficial on dry soils that are likely to bake, however.

Knocking on Wood

This is a different shot or different section of the plant from yours, Uncle Joe.

The Real Issue
Anyhow, the point is not particularly important. Why did R. J. Thoms have to spend his entire weekend making five radio speeches and appear at two local mass meetings URGING the 21,000 others men to go back to work? Why did Walter Reuther charge that Leo Lamotte called the strike for his own political purposes? Why did Thomas have to tell 4,000 Dodge workers at Keyworth Stadium: "This union is getting too big for that sort of thing. I think that if this union is going to continue to exist we will have to put political knife-throwing and go down the line with a clear trade union policy."

Do you think the boys in the foxholes worry about Leo Lamotte and Walter Reuther? Or whether the Chrysler corporation has been slow to agree to the union's demands? The soldiers don't care who was responsible for the strike, but they will be mighty sore when they discover that 24,000 men, earning wages at the top or near the top of any in the world, were idle for four days when they should have been at their machines turning out instruments of war.

Will Televiser Canoe Trail Film

LANSING.—"Michigan Canoe Trails," a color motion picture with sound, produced by the State Department of Conservation in 1942, is scheduled to reach 35,000 television customers in metropolitan New York and another 3,000 in the Albany-Troy-Schenectady triangle when the National Broadcasting company sends it over the air June 21.

Rich in fall color and wild-life as well as shots of fast water, the Canoe Trails picture is one of the most popular in the department's film loan library. Other color films produced by the department recently may be televised later.
