Symphony Artists To Appear Here In Event June 16

To purchase albums of record music for the Percy Jones war veterans' hospital at Battle Creek, the Birmingham Musicale and the MOMS Club are jointly sponsoring a concert of chamber music to be held Wednesday evening, June 16, at the Community House.

William Grainger King, a member of the Detroit Orchestra, who has been presenting a series of chamber music recitals in Detroit recently, will bring a group of musicians to Birmingham for the concert. Lois Johnson Chapman, well-known soprano, will be the assisting artist.

The idea originated on Thursday, May 13, when seven members of the Birmingham Musicale attended the state convention of the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs in Ann Arbor. One of the speakers of the day was Mrs. A. P. Peterson of Battle Creek, State Chairman of War Service.

Mrs. Peterson made a plea to the music clubs that they make music for the members of the armed forces their project for the year. By music, she meant to provide instruments, record playing machines, records, sheet music, mouth organs, or anything that our fighters require musically to help morale. She has a son in service. She explained the extreme need for music at the Percy Jones Hospital in Battle Creek, where wounded soldiers of this war are being cared for. There are about 1,000 men there, some recuperating from serious illness, many maimed for life.

As a result, the Birmingham contingent returned home resolving to do something toward filling this need.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Kenneth Turner, the concert has been arranged.

ter and Martin streets and marched around the block. Trailing behind the band came the parade's leading particular menageries. Most prevalent among the entries were dogs of every color, breed, and size trotting patiently beside their young masters in the hot sun beaded in dresses, bows, ribbons, overalls, or suits. There were also rabbits, kittens, doves, chickens, bees, a parrot, a lamb and a goat.

The judges, Mrs. John G. Graham, Mrs. George T. Hendrie, Mrs. Charles E. Buck, and Mrs. L. N. Pole, reviewed all the engaging entries and picked the winners, not without difficulty. They were: Theresa De los Rios, 7 years old, who received the prize for the prettiest entry; Butch Hammond, 4 years old, received a prize for the funniest entry; and Johnny Hubert, 7 years old, had the most original entry.

Theresa's entry was a little cart on which stood a big sign saying "Buy War Bonds," trimmed with red, white, and blue ribbon pulled by a black and white fox terrier. Theresa was dressed in a miniature Waac uniform.

Butch Hammond swaggered along dressed as a hunter complete with painted mustache, visored cap, and huge gun boots. He had a gun slung over his shoulder and a hunter dog, twice as big as he was, walking beside him. The big shoes were quite a load to carry and when Butch would spy his father, he'd run up and ask, "How long do I have to keep marching?"

Johnny Hubert easily had the most original entry. He carried a cage of bees and wore a beekeeper's suit with a shield over his hat and long gloves. The cage was labeled, "High Voltage" and "The Stinging Pets."

Other entries that added to the spectators' enjoyment were Stevie Seiffert pulling a cage in which his sister, Suzz, sat dressed as a lion. Carlye Scott and Lynne Davison both wore authentic Scotch costumes, Carlye leading two black scotties and Lynne with a black and white sealhound. Peggy Jo Crim carried a tiny lamb, and one dachshund waddled along with the sign "8 points, low ceiling" on his back.

After the parade, each contestant was presented with a certificate and sent off home with tired parents and pets in tow wildly tooting on the whistles.

Please limit your call to 5 minutes. Others are waiting

EVEN in wartime, we'd like to give you prompt service on long distance calls. But telephone lines to many points now are overloaded, and urgent civilian calls often are delayed.

When circuits are extra busy, and the operator requests you to limit your call to 5 minutes, please know it's because others are waiting.

You can help speed the handling of all calls, including your own, if you make this your resolution: "I will make only absolutely necessary long distance calls. . . . If I must call long distance, I will be brief."
