

Baptist Church Marks 25th Wedding Anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Nelson

An air of expectancy filled the Baptist church parlor last Friday evening just after 8 o'clock. Whispers of "Quiet, here they come!" suddenly stilled the 150 people seated in a large circle around the room. The lights were put out and the door closed. Everyone sat in hushed silence, but little shivers of excitement and expectation ran through the group. Then footsteps were heard before the door and the handle was turned. Immediately the lights went on and cries of "Surprise!" split the silence.

The occasion was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Nelson, of the Baptist church. After dinner at the Devon Gables with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ackery, of Pierce street, who were celebrating their fourth anniversary, the Nelsons had returned home. There they received a call saying that there was a soldier at the church wanting to be married.

As they made a circle of the room, shaking hands with their friends, there was the hint of a tear in many an eye. The good folk of the parish were very proud of their minister. They showed this in the way they looked at him the way they smiled.

After singing songs and congratulating the Nelsons over again, the company partook of cake and tea or coffee. Decorations at the tables were white and silver. The candles were trimmed with silver ribbons and large bouquets of baby's breath were placed on the tables.

Rev. and Mrs. Nelson were given flowers by their daughter, Anita,

Save and Conserve - help boost the armed might of America! Conservation of fuel, manpower, equipment and materials is a "must" for the United States if we are to achieve the maximum war production every American wants. "Every pound of coal, every gallon of oil, every cubic foot of gas that can be saved means that our national energy pool is strengthened just that much. Every manhour saved in the production of these basic fuels in the production of electricity, in transportation and in communications is a manhour that can be used for something else. Every pound of tungsten that can be saved in the production of electric lamps is a pound that can be used in the production of radar equipment. "We have, therefore, called upon the coal, petroleum, electric, natural gas and manufactured gas, water, communications and transportation industries to join with us in a broad conservation campaign to accomplish these results. The campaign will be voluntary. Cooperation of these industries in saving the public to use their services only as absolutely necessary represents a real sacrifice and to give them and the war effort public to appreciate that sacrifice and to give them and the war effort enthusiastic and unselfish cooperation as this campaign develops." Signed: DONALD M. NELSON, Chairman, War Production Board. HAROLD L. ICKES, Solid Fuels Administrator and Petroleum Coordinator for War. JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, Director of Defense Transportation.

Here's What You Can Do to Conserve NATURAL GAS U. S. GOVERNMENT MAKES SPECIFIC REQUESTS Uncle Sam is urgently appealing to every American to save as much Gas as possible, beginning RIGHT NOW. The Government has launched a Seven-Industry Voluntary Conservation Program which embraces electricity, coal, petroleum, water, transportation and communications in addition to Gas. With the other gas utilities throughout the United States, Consumers is joining wholeheartedly in this Conservation Program. Our gas resources have proved sufficient for all essential industrial, commercial and residential needs. But natural gas is a national asset, a major fuel in war production, and should never be used wastefully. We urge every customer to cooperate fully in the Government's Conservation Program. Says J. A. Krug, director of the Office of War Utilities: "With everyone contributing, the effect will be tremendous in hastening the day of Victory." War Production Board's Voluntary PROGRAM FOR NATURAL GAS CONSERVATION Residential Year-Round Conservation 1. Cook whole meals in oven. Cook one-dish meals on top burners. 2. Do not light top burners until cooking utensils are in place. 3. Do not use running hot water for washing dishes or hands. Repair leaky faucets. Heat and use no more water than is necessary. 4. Never leave refrigerator door open. Cool cooked foods before placing in refrigerator. Commercial and Industrial 1. Make efficient use of gas-fired equipment for cooking and water heating. Eliminate waste of hot water. 2. Company representatives will, upon request of commercial customers, make inspections of their gas-fired equipment to assist them with respect to proper and efficient operation. 3. Company representatives will, upon request of industrial customers, make surveys of their plants for the purpose of eliminating all waste in the use of gas. 4. Commercial and industrial customers reduce temperature to the standards recommended for residential customers. 5. The use of gas in make-shift heating appliances by workers in industrial plants should be discouraged by the managers of such plants. "Conservation of fuel, manpower, equipment and materials is a 'must' for the United States if we are to achieve the maximum war production every American wants." HAROLD L. ICKES, JOSEPH B.
