GIRL SCOUTS

None are more ready to serve in any emergency than the Girl Scouts.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK
 Girl Scout Week, which opens October 31 and continues through November 6, will this year be celebrated by the largest number of Girl Scouts in the organization's history. Membership reached a record high of 807,704 in July, including both girls and adults, an increase of 23% since Pearl Harbor.

The founder of Girl Scouting in the United States was Juliette Gordon Low, who was born on October 31, 1860. On March 12, 1912, Mrs. Low invited twenty-four girls to tea in Savannah, Georgia, to talk about Scouting for girls.

Although Juliette Low was the founder of Girl Scouting in the United States, her inspiration reached farther than our shores because it was through her efforts that girls from different countries, sometimes as many as ten countries, would live together for a few summer weeks. In her memory this real example of global friendship will be carried on again after the war.

In Birmingham, Girl Scout week will start with the Girl Scouts and Brownies going to church, sitting together. Each group will be accompanied by an adult leader or council member. Girl Scouts all over the United States will attend church on Sunday. The national program for the week follows a traditional pattern, being devoted to Seven Service Days. Mrs. E. P.
 Brumbaugh, Girl Scout Commissioner explained.

While this program remains basically the same as always, as the war progresses, more and more time is being given to training girls to meet community needs which have become urgent because of the war. Through these services, the girls are learning that citizenship in a democracy means giving as well as receiving. This is the most important lesson for the girls who as the women of tomorrow will be asked to shoulder many of the important problems of the postwar world.

National Council
 This week Mrs. Brumbaugh and Mrs. Ewald Schaffer of the Girl Scout Council are attending the National Council of Girl Scouts in Cleveland, Ohio.

Code Records
 The older girls in Scouting will be interested in the Morse Code phonograph records which are now available in the Girl Scout Room at the Community House. Former Girl Scouts who are now in the service tell us their code training has helped them a great deal.

Exchange of Uniforms Mrs. George Finch, deputy commissioner, is anxious for all uniforms and manuals to be in use.
 Girls who are no longer Scouts might be willing to pass their man-uals on to other girls. It is sometimes difficult to buy a uniform because many girls do not grow theirs. Mrs. Finch feels there should be some means of selling or exchanging them. She has kindly offered to take care of such inquiries and her phone number is 3676.

Troop News
 Troop 4, whose leader is Mrs.
 O. W. Winter, welcomed and flew up 14 Brownies at Quorton School Tuesday of last week. The Brownies were Ann Averill, Mary Drake, Mary Dodson, Margaret Ireland, Marilee Kleintert, Mary Alice Robertson, Marilyn Scheel, Joyce Thomas, Barbara Stauffer, Connie Whitney, Judy Ravilla, Susan Minnissell, Elaine Packard, and Sally Allen.

Troop 7, which meets at Pierce School, held a candlelight investiture service at the Community House on October 19. Jean Hunter, Sue Mason, Ann Morrow, Judy Parmenter, Betty Lou Quilhot, Betty Rensch, and Patricia Benan-son were the girls invested. Supper and games followed. Mrs. C. H. A.
 Davison is the leader.

Troop 10, whose leaders are Barbara Fletcher and Betty Staf-fee, will help the Boy Scouts in receiving food for the annual Halloween celebration on Saturday night.

Troop 6 had a steak roast near Big Beaver last Sunday. Twenty girls, the leaders, Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Amos Gregory, and three mothers enjoyed a treasure hunt before returning to Birmingham.

Leaders
 Last week in this column the leaders of the troops which meet at Adams and Quorton were given.
 At Pierce School there is one Girl Scout Troop and one Brownie Troop. Mrs. C. H. A. Davison is leader of Troop 7 and Brownie Troop 13 has as leader Mrs. Charles Richards, assisted by Mrs. Stanley Ross and Mrs. P. Gallagher.

 num girls meet at the Community
