Folks in Uniform A cartoon illustration showing a man in a military uniform sitting at a desk, looking at a letter. The caption reads: "Could I interest you gentlemen in subscribing to our magazine Kitchen Helps?"

To the People of this Community: ARE YOU REALLY AT WAR? What does being at war mean to you? Less gasoline in your car and less sugar in your coffee? Higher prices for your food and clothes? Separation from your loved ones?

Mr. and Mrs. Reas G. Adams of Birmingham Road, who have three sons in the service, have received seven months in an army hospital with a broken back. Although he still wears a brace, he has returned to active duty.

IN ENGLAND Pfc. Ed. Haseck, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Haseck, of Ridgevale avenue, has arrived safely in England.

Completed Primary Aviation Cadet Joseph C. Dargatzis, formerly of Birmingham, has completed his instruction in primary flying and has been transferred to Goodfellow Field, San Antonio, Texas, where he is now taking a course in basic flying.

William Frederick Elmore, son of Robert I. Elmore, of Devonshire road, was recently appointed a Naval Aviation Cadet and was transferred to the Naval Air Training Center, Pensacola, Fla.

Thomas A. Cummings, F. J. son of Mrs. Lewis Cummings, 15 Hennetta St., was home on leave recently from the Great Lakes Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill.

Whether you want to sell a house—buy a farm—rent a summer cottage—or need any one of a dozen services—Eccentric want-ads speak a language of their own—a language as distinctive and meaningful as the language, say, of "Jitterbugs," whose jive-jargon and reet-plet terms have the younger set "in the groove."

Young or old, it seems that EVERYBODY reads the Eccentric want-ads. People needing help... people looking for an evening's entertainment... people looking for used furniture, household accessories or personal services.

Turn to the Eccentric classified columns now—see if they aren't speaking a language "out of this world." Use them when there's anything you need—and don't know how to go about obtaining it!

And just as an added incentive, we've sprinkled three "Jitterbug" want ads in the classified columns today—in hep-cat speech, inspired by the new 20th Century-Fox laugh comedy, "Jitterbugs," which stars Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy and opens Friday at the Birmingham Theatre.

These ads match the illustrations at right, and all you've got to do is pair them correctly. They're not too difficult. Even if you think "jitterbug" is an entomological term, you'll probably be able to discover the correct answer. Of course you can always ask me to help you out!

ECCENTRIC WANT-ADS GET ACTION IN ANY LANGUAGE

Illustrations of people in various situations, including a man in a military uniform, a man in a suit, and a man in a hat. Captions include: "(Paste or re-print correct want-ad here)", "Young or old, it seems that EVERYBODY reads the Eccentric want-ads.", "These ads match the illustrations at right, and all you've got to do is pair them correctly.", "Turn to the Eccentric classified columns now—see if they aren't speaking a language 'out of this world.'", "And just as an added incentive, we've sprinkled three 'Jitterbug' want ads in the classified columns today—in hep-cat speech, inspired by the new 20th Century-Fox laugh comedy, 'Jitterbugs,' which stars Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy and opens Friday at the Birmingham Theatre.", "These ads match the illustrations at right, and all you've got to do is pair them correctly. Match them to the pictures and for the first 15 correct answers 15 pairs of guest tickets to the Birmingham Theatre will be awarded. Address your entries to 'Jitterbugs' in this paper. Entries must be in by Sunday midnight!", "Get in the contest groove, puzzlers!"
