DON'T BE NERVOUS ABOUT RUSSIA!

A couple of years ago, Dr. Vera Micheles Dean, an authority on Russia, spoke here at the Community House...

Yet, we need not be puzzled too greatly, I think Russia's foreign policy has been crystal clear compared to our own during the past 25 years...

For example, those who think Russia may sponsor a deal, separate peace with Hitlerite Germany just don't know the Russian mind...

Secondly, Stalin is trying every move he can devise to get us to establish a large-scale second front...

Stalin figures that he has gained everything in his defense of Russia. He has sacrificed several million men...

But he knows from Churchill's record on the subject that the Prime Minister is never sincere...

So, he chides us about it. He recalls his stand on the defense of Russia. He calls home his ambassadors in Europe...

In the first place, I don't believe in the use of force. It is sure to fail. It is sure to be recalled his ambassadors from Washington and London...

Recalling his stand on the defense of Russia. He recalls his stand on the defense of Russia. He recalls his stand on the defense of Russia.

Ford: Theory And Practice

Henry Ford, who recently celebrated his eighty-first birthday, is remarkable in many respects, including the fact that he ran an actual investment of $28,000,000 into an industrial empire with assets of more than $800,000,000 in the short space of forty years.

When Mr. Ford speaks about business and industry, one is inclined to pay close attention to his remarks. The same conclusion does not apply, however, to his opinion on matters historical, philosophical, or otherwise.

In connection with the discussion of the probable draft of fathers, the Army has rejected almost one million men for illiteracy.

We are inclined to believe that the Army should draft these men and cure them. Because of a disease that can be cured. More illiterates and general dunces are being sent into service would do much to prevent the necessity of drafting fathers.

It is said that AUTOCRACY CENTERS its powers in the state, which then controls and directs the citizenry and general dunces are being sent into service would do much to prevent the necessity of drafting fathers.

The Third War Loan Drive will soon begin, with the Government asking the people of the country to invest $15,000,000,000 in the cause of freedom.

Every individual, man or woman, must determine the amount of bonds to be purchased. This is a problem to be solved only by the person affected.

Life Magazine, discussing plans to protect the returning soldier from misfortune, urges a "big, confident America" as the goal for everybody.

Exactly what the magazine has in mind is doubtful. Certainly the United States is big and prior to the present war, nobody ever accused the nation or its citizens of a lack of confidence.

In fact, one of the troubles which interfered with the development of a sensible foreign policy was the absurd contention of the world Americans that "we could kick the world."
