mingham took possession of the ball and Spiegel was called upon again. This time he ran 27 yards to the house before he was brought down. On the next play he made the yardage for a score. Adams' kick was again blocked and the game ended 19-0.

The Lineups
East Detroit's starting lineup consisted of Captain Jack Hoffman and Wayne Hall, ends; Ray Van Iiter and Charles Schock, tackles; Harold Watson and Bill Powell, guards; Warren Quaine, center; Ray Haynes, quarterback; Herman Campbell and Bill Dover, half-backs; and John Manalo, fullback.

It would be unfair to point out any one player or player as stars of the game for Birmingham as this could not be done without bringing the rest of the team into the picture. He was picked because they all turned in fine performances and played as a strong unit. The success of a group depends on individual glory.

Winona Singers Sent to Officers' School by SPARS

Winona H. Singers, 35, Yeoman, Second Class, 528 Park street, has been selected as one of the ten women of the Women's Reserve of the U. S. Coast Guard to be among 75 officer candidates who began training Sept. 22 at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.

Yeoman Singers enlisted in the Waves in September, 1942. She trained at Stillwater, Oklahoma, for four months where she completed both the indoctrination and yeoman instructor course. Miss Singers was one of the group of Waves who transferred to the Spars when the Women's Reserve of the Coast Guard was formed in November, 1942. She had been stationed in Washington, D. C., for the past six months.
This is the second group of enlisted women chosen for officer training. In order to qualify as an officer candidate, an enlisted woman must have been on active duty in the service for at least six months and attained a satisfactory record on the job during that time. She must be recommended for officer training by her commanding officer and pass specified examination.

Ask Gas Users To Follow Rules

Cooperating with the War Production Board's Seven-Industry Program of Conservation, Consumers Power Company will urge its customers to eliminate all waste of unnecessary use of gas, Division Manager David L. Brown said today.
Through newspaper advertising, personal contacts and other means, said Mr. Brown, "we will point out how gas can be conserved in ways which will not interfere with war production, public safety, military needs or public health."
Mr. Brown emphasized that the conservation program is not a local project but a nationwide campaign involving not only the gas industry but also the electrical, coal, petroleum products, communications, water and transportation industries. The purpose is to conserve manpower as well as natural resources.
Housewives will be urged to plan meals with a view to gas economy. One-dish meals cooked on top burners, or meals cooked wholly in the oven, require less gas, it is pointed out, than other types of meals.
In order to conserve gas used for water heating, the Company will recommend that leaky faucets be repaired and that customers refrain from using running water when washing hands or dishes. Special recommendations for gas conservation will be made to commercial and industrial customers and to customers using gas for house heating.

Trickery

Colonel—So you lost half your forces by a trick of the enemy? Captain—Yes. They rigged up a machine gun to look like a movie camera, and the boys just went for a chance to get in front of it.

Mary Ann Neff Writes of WAVES

The following is a letter received by Mrs. Joseph deBruyn, of Knox street, from her daughter, Mary Ann Neff, 7 1/2 c, stationed at the Naval Air Station, Pasco, Wash.
"I have so much to tell you that I hardly know where to begin. I had an opportunity to take a glorious cross-country trip with Cliff, who was taking this flight to check instruments and navigation. We went to Pocatello, Idaho, and was fun! I sat up about 10 hours to the 'Heady' room where they keep all the equipment for flying. I crawled into a pair of aviator's cover-alls, very snappy, and got a parachute fitted to me and we were going to get over the top of a little ship all nice and silver and Hollywood with a plastic tube which slides back and forth. I climbed in, grateful as a cow, and they checked me out on the radio, as when I can talk to the pilot and when it is on radio; showed me how to release the hatch in case of jumping and buckled me in. I don't think I could have got out if I had to, with all the straps and so forth, that I had to wear. I was a helmet with goggles and felt like Amelia herself! We took off, which is thrilling with a roar, and I was really buzzed showing that the wheels were going up and away we went over the top of Idaho. I was scared that I would touch something and throw the plane out of control. I was afraid to land. Going over the mountains, the foot-hills of the Rockies, is just crossing over the moon. It looks so barren. You start at the bottom of them and wonder how in heck you are going to get over the top of the range, but we made it. We had to attain 10,000 feet to get over, and my poor little ears that I have, and awfully sensitive, nearly blew up.
"On a flight like this, they follow out on maps, and they receive code on this beam; by the time I was in the air, they tell me if they are 'on the beam,' so to speak; to the left or right, and I was told to land at Boise, Gowen Field, where the big Army B-24s hang out. It is fascinating to hear them trying to land and to hear as they go, 'that matter. About three miles from the field they say, 'Boise tower, Boise tower, this Navy 43-091. Three miles from field, request instructions, altitude, velocity to land.' Then the tower says, 'Navy 27-001 received, circle field twice, come in first position and land.'
"With the cooperation of the universities of Michigan, Wayne, Northwestern, and Cincinnati, the Northwest and Chrysler Corporation initiated an Apprentice Training School, in which the student not only spent 40 hours a week of actual machine shop work, but also attended daily conferences on various phases of industrial management and operation, including problems of personnel, social service, employment, labor relations, and others.
Teachers Better Informed
The course was intended to give school teachers concerned with vocational guidance a clearer insight into the opportunities available to qualified young men and women in industry today. As these teachers are in daily contact with school students, it was believed that by actual participation in the work they would be better qualified to advise students who are interested in many vocations in industrial organizations. In actually learning by doing, the teachers will be better able to understand students' problems and after they graduate, place them in positions where they will be happy.
Girls' Counselor
Miss Brusie, who came to Birmingham in 1926, taught at Adams Junior High before going to Barnum last year. In addition to her duties as girls' counselor, she teaches Latin and English and received her Master's degree in Guidance in 1932.
Miss Brusie is past president of the Birmingham Teacher's Club, a member of the National Education Society for Women, Pi Lambda Theta, and also belongs to the American Association of University Women. Her hobbies are cooking, reading poetry, and traveling, and she has toured the United States, Europe and Mexico.
Miss Brusie was very enthusiastic about her training and hopes that it will be continued in the future. She also expressed the wish that other plants will start similar teacher training centers. I know what I'm talking about now," she added, "and I believe that every teacher would benefit from the experiences I had, working on the midnight shift."
Miss Brusie is adjusting herself to the reversed living conditions. Miss Brusie, who resides at 626 Adams road, concluded, "I am especially fond of the boys and girls of Birmingham and love to work with them."

Little David DuHamel, 2, seems just a trifle uneasy as he examines a 50 caliber anti-aircraft machine gun at an Army show in Washington. Probably wondering whether he'll have to help him one day in 1943, when he'll be 22.
