Dear Friends: It is the end of July and the big invasion is nearly two months old. Since then quite a lot has happened. A lot has happened and at the same time I've had a lot to think about. As a result of all this thinking I have a lot of pent up feelings. Everyone knows that it is definitely wrong to hold onto your feelings. I feel that this is a good way to rid myself of all these feelings. Right you are in Italy lately? Long lines of people waiting to be fed, waiting in rags and tatters. People who are forgotten when good food looks like, people without shoes forced to walk wherever they have to go, it may be right, but if it's only a block or ten miles. Prices are not only sky high but higher. A pair of nice, clean, paper shoes costs 1500 lire; food practically unobtainable. Picture people walking on strike production lines by long years of regimentation. I know that many send their money for the family. Not very pretty is it?

Don't Like Strikes
Then you pick up an American paper or magazine. 65000 year workers out on strike. Production stopped, why? Well, 65000 people are needed because Mr. Smith was hired for a job instead of Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown might be of the colored race. Tak, tak. More production cut down. Why? Well, so and so works by doing piece work. That's fine, so why—why do the others don't work? Well, as a result we are striking to force the company to fire him. Did the strike stop? Well, yes, we just don't want anyone who works that fast. Oh! That's fine. I have some more less guns to send over this month.

That damn ration board. Of all the nerve. My book ran out this morning, and tomorrow we get our new books, but I had to walk three blocks to catch a bus. That damn ration board. And still another letter in this column: The Hon. Senator filled up his gas tank today and drove somewhere over a thousand miles to address a convention. His several points concerned: 1. Hurrah for D. B. 2. To hell with the New Deal. 3. Stay out of Europe. 4. White supremacy must be upheld. (Hurrah, hurrah!!!) The colored people are still doing anything to help the war effort!

End Not In Sight
The other day several of the fellows arrived back from the states after a 30-day furlough. Their story is a general attitude of "I've had it. I've had it. I've had it. The end is in sight, now we can relax. Yes, I too will admit that the end is finally in sight. But, there is still a long bloody road to travel. And now is not the time to come back here and thank for the four walls. And then you pick up an American newspaper. The war is still on. I wonder sometimes, doesn't it? I know it does me. All we can do now is stay out of Europe. I wish some day we will be home again.

Well, to tell the truth, I feel much better now and thank for listening to my tale of woe. But in all fairness before I close, I must say it all as it is pictured. I know there are still those who continue to buy their bonds who can tighten their belts and keep going. And for all those I breathe my prayer of thanks, it is they who make all this worth while. Nor do I want them to think that I'm for as it is written in the good book: "To everything there is a season, a time to every purpose under the heaven." And again before I close, thanks a million to the Eccentric. It is a million times in a fairly record coming through from Birmingham, and I have finally caught up in the news. My book ran out this morning, and tomorrow we get our new books, but I had to walk three blocks to catch a bus. That damn
