Advise Hunters Of New Bag Limits

Birmingham's duck hunters, and it is said there are a lot of them are being warned by the state conservation department that they should inform themselves of the new American and Canadian bag limits before the fall shoot.

Duck hunters who cross into Canada from Michigan this fall are advised that Michigan possession limits determine the number of birds they may bring across the border on their return. Canadian possession limits are higher.

A hunter may bring into Michigan from Canada not more than two days' bag limit of ducks in any one calendar week. The same restriction covers woodcock. Shipments from Canada must be accompanied by export permits and Michigan hunters are advised also that identity of birds must not be destroyed.

New regulations for the 1944 season allow Michigan hunters a daily bag of 10 of any one kind of ducks and in any combination of all kinds (except American and redbreasted mergansers), but including in such limit not more than one wood duck. In addition to this total of 10, a person may kill five more mallards (not black ducks), or five more pintails, or five more wigeons; or five more mallards, pintails, and widgeons in any combination even though he has these species, or some of them, in his bag limit of 10.

Aquarium Guide Is Just Off Press

Just off the press is Edward T. Boardman's "Guide to Higher Aquarium Animals" published by Cranbrook Institute of Science, at Bloomfield Hills. The book is intended as an amateur's introduction to the native fishes, salamanders, frogs, toads, snakes and turtles which are most adaptable to aquarium life. For a broad area, centered in Michigan, it serves both as a means of identification and guide to the care of the species described. A companion volume is Dr. Boardman's "Field Guide to the Lower Aquarium Animals," also published by Cranbrook Institute of Science.

The new volume, pleasingly illustrated, contains very complete information on a wide variety of aquarium life and gives the amateur a history of species he may want for his aquarium. The book contains 198 pages and a great deal of the information is also valuable to the fisherman who enjoys trying his luck for Michigan game fish.

The other science publications from Cranbrook of keen interest to fishermen and to persons planning aquariums are "Minnows of Michigan," and "Guide to the Fishes of the Great Lakes and Tributary Waters." The former is by Carl L. Hubbs and Gerald P. Cooper and the latter is by Mr. Hubbs and Karl Lagler.

All are printed by the Cranbrook Press.

The foreword explains that Dr. Boardman is serving with the American army overseas as an officer in the Sanitary Corps.
