TWO TO FIVE DAY SERVICE WHEN YOU WANT YOUR FURS

HERE'S WHY THERE AREN'T ENOUGH TELEPHONES TO GO 'ROUND

Those huge coils you see are telephone wires... hundreds of miles of it for combat communications.

Perhaps it seems a far cry from a South Pacific island to your home or office telephone. Yet it takes wire to connect your telephone to the central office. And it takes wire to enlarge switchboards for additional telephones.

Wire is only one of many vital telephone materials that just can't be spared today for civilian comfort and convenience. As a result, many applicants for telephone service have had to wait.

Orders for telephones essential to the war are filled promptly. Other requests for new service are handled under a definite procedure as present ability gives up service. But there is a long and growing waiting list.

We're sorry we can't provide service for everyone who wants it. But we feel sure you'll agree that war needs must come first.

Can You Picture MICHIGAN without Transportation?

Public transportation—by highway and skyway, by railway and waterway—is one of the most vital industries of this State of ours. It represents far more than a vast array of terminals, equipment, repair shops and cold statistics about moving manpower—it's the link that joins Michigan's cities and towns and rural communities to each other and to the rest of the Nation. In these tense times, it is the means of bringing boys home on furlough—of getting workers to the war plants—of keeping on the move all those people whose travel is essential to Victory.

An estimated 75,000 of our fellow-citizens of Michigan are hard at work on the 34 railroads and the 3 airlines serving Michigan, on boats, barges, huge fleets of trucks, and on the 104 inter-city bus lines which operate 860 buses along 12,201 miles of routes within our State borders. No small share of the credit for the efficiency of this excellent transportation system belongs to the Michigan Public Service Commission and the O.D.T.

We who keep Greyhound buses rolling across our State are conscious of the importance of our particular job—to the whole system of wartime transportation. Without the buses doing their share of the job other transportation would be burdened beyond capacity.

Many of our people today are serving in the Armed Forces—the rest of us are doing our level best to keep essential highway travel safe and efficient.

But we're also thinking about and planning for the post-war days, when pleasant travel will return and when such travel in new and finer Super-Coaches will be a greater pleasure than ever.
