Mrs. Bruce N. Coulter is in charge of the first program which will be given with the cooperation of officers of the base on May 31.

Participating in the program May 21 will be the Messengers Paul B. Hoffman, Ronald Ballantyne, Benjamin Brester, Frederick C. Few, David Waller Lee, and Bruce N. Coulter. The Messengers Paul B. Hoffman, Ronald Ballantyne, Benjamin Brester, Frederick C. Few, David Waller Lee, and Bruce N. Coulter.

Jr. Musicales Spring Concert Reported As Fine Success

The Birmingham Musicales had every reason to be exceedingly proud of its eldest child, the Birmingham Junior Musicales, on the occasion of the presentation of its annual spring concert Tuesday evening, May 9, at the Community Center.

A large bowl of fireworks on the platform created a springtime atmosphere and when the curtain went back for the first number, the Federation Collect, sung by the girl members of the group, their sparkling voices and the pastel shades made a very pretty picture, as lovely to look at as they were to listen to.

The Juniors have one advantage over the Senior Club—they have male members, whose "contributions" to the program were some of the outstandingly fine contributions to the program. Mrs. Earl Bartholomew playing the accompaniment and Mrs. Charles H. Jones for French horn, and Mrs. Isaac Robertson, who accompanied her son, House, in his flute number of these boys play exceptionally well.

A woodland ensemble composed of Katherine E. Housworth, flute; Margaret Richey, clarinet; and Clara Lou White, clarinet, played the Bash "Woodland Suite," and another feminine ensemble, a vocal one, composed of Ann MacDonell, Ann Hansen and Dorothy Atkinson, sang a delightful little song entitled "Three Little Maids in a Row."

The concert was a fine contribution to the fund for the young people must have been a source of great satisfaction to their teachers and parents. The Junior Musicales has 26 members, all of whom are performing musicians. The senior club counselors are Mrs. Ruth E. and Mrs. Margaret Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bernat gave much of their time to the young musicians representing for the program. Miss Clark and Beth Scholter displayed all of the qualities necessary to good accompanists.

The Junior Musicales welcomes young people of high school age to its membership. The public has been asked to be prepared for strange dolours on the down town sidewalks on Saturday June 3, for the annual Girl Scout Penny Drive will be under way (and almost under foot). Troop 7 is busy making plans for a Mother's Day party. The girls are also making presents for their mothers but for obvious reasons the curtain of censorship must descend upon a description of these gifts.

The Brunes of Troop 19 have just purchased a new American flag and a new Browne troop flag. On Saturday, May 6th, Troop 10 spent the night at the cabin in Springdale Park, with Laura Smith as chaperone. A surprise birthday celebration was staged in honor of Marjorie Hannaman, the "piece de resistance" being a birthday cake baked by Barbara Garner.

Recently several girls of this troop helped prepare the Community House Drive literature for mailing. On Thursday afternoon, Brownie Troop 13 and one of Quartet School have a treat in store when J. D. Harey, an expert story teller, will give them the Browne Story and another about a crocus.

The monthly council meeting will be held at the Community House on Friday at 10 o'clock.
