To Recruit Youths For Farming Circles

Fifty-thousand Michigan boys and girls who had some farm experience in 1943 are being recruited with thousands of others to help win the battle of Michigan farm production in 1944, according to C. B. Dibble, state leader of the Victory Farm Volunteers.

Work of recruiting and training is a part of the emergency farm labor program directed by the extension service of Michigan State College. County agricultural agents, vocational teachers with training classes in schools, school superintendents and private individuals are among those participating.

Those boys and girls who got some actual farm experience in 1943 include more than 5,000 who lived temporarily away from home. Some of the in-school youths already are at work part time in nurseries and greenhouses.

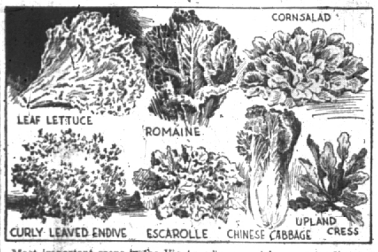
Vitamins Easy to Take in Bowl of Tempting Salad



Most important crops in the Victory garden, nutritionists assure us, are the "green leafy" foods, rich especially in Vitamin A, of which we eat far too little.

And this does not mean spinach, necessarily; nor should those who do not like spinach shy away from the subject. Among the green, leafy foods, are the leaves used in bowl salads, which will satisfy the nutritional needs of the family while at the same time delighting any civilized palate.

Famous chefs pride themselves on their salads. One uncooked salad may be served every day at dinner with a great variety of nutritious ingredients produced in the Victory garden. Bowl salad addicts often have a ritual, in which they mix the dressing at the table, and toss the salad in the wooden bowl, which is first rubbed with a clove of garlic in order to impart a suggestion of its flavor. While olive oil is not plentiful in war time, corn oil and other vegetable oils are plentiful and serve quite well for dressing.

Leaf lettuce is preferred by most chefs over head lettuce for salads. It is also far richer in vitamins. It comes in two types—the butter leaves, and the crisp leaves. The butter leaves are thicker, and darker green, with finer flavor, the experts say. Crisp leaves are lighter green in color, thin and somewhat brittle. Examples are Black Seeded Simpson, a butter type, and Grand Rapids, a crisp leaf type. Experts give first place in their esteem to the butter leaves.

Romaine or cos lettuce, which produces oval leaves, standing upright, is highly esteemed by French salad experts. It is a good late lettuce, standing heat better than the leaf varieties. The leaves can be bleached by tying them up as they near maturity, but this merely changes their color, and lessens their vitamin content.

For summer leaves, chicory, also known as endive, is more available than lettuce, which usually runs to seed in midsummer. Endive may be had with curly leaves, or broad leaves. Many like the curly leaves best for summer, and broad leaves (escarolle) for fall, as they endure frost and become sweeter after the frost comes. Sow both types in drills, thin out to six or eight inches.

Leaf crops grown in a similar manner, and much esteemed in bowl salads, include corn salad, which is very hardy and can be harvested late in the fall; and upland garden, cress, which gives a pungent flavor to the salad.

In the fall lettuce may be grown again; and the Chinese cabbage leaves are delicious. Chinese cabbage may be grown in the spring, with rich soil and an early start. But in midsummer, it always runs to seed. A late crop has no such tendency, and heads are easily produced in the fall, from plants started in late June.

All leaf crops demand rich soil. They must grow fast without check, otherwise the leaves are tough and have a bitter flavor. Plant food should be applied to the soil in which they grow at the rate of 4 pounds to 100 square feet.

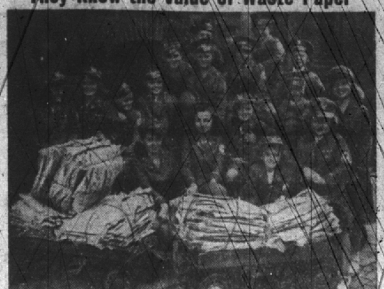
MSC Returning To Varsity Athletics

Ralph H. Young, director of athletics at Michigan State college, announced that the University of Missouri at Columbia, Missouri, will be on the Spartan football schedule next fall.

This intercollegiate contest was announced following the decision of the faculty to resume intercollegiate sports on July 1 after terminating varsity athletics last August when military inductions depleted the ranks of Spartan athletes.

In returning to intercollegiate athletics, stated Young, Michigan State will limit games to colleges that do not use Navy or Marine personnel for teams.

They Know the Value of Waste Paper



Young America can't get to the fighting fronts, but they are doing a great job of backing up the boys. These Junior Service Wardens in Post ten, Sector eight, Zone 25, Philadelphia, are going all out to help overcome the critical waste paper shortage. Waste paper is doing a vital war job. Food, blood plasma, ammunition, medical supplies are all shipped in containers made of reprocessed scrap. How about it? Can the boys depend on you to do your share? It may mean the saving of some boy's life!
